Hunt 3 In O.S.R. Kidnap-Escape

REPORT DOZEN OTHERS LINKED IN BREAK PLOT

Officers In 5 Counties Lose Trail of Fugitives In Mad Dash for Freedom.

PRIED PRISON BARS LOOSE

Inmates Reach Outside, Then Seize Auto, Girl Visitor: Later Release Her.

Three fugitives from the Ohio state reformatory eluded a posse of prison guards and law enforcement officers of five counties in a night-long search launched following their escape yesterday by prying a bar off a prison window and kidnaping a girl in their dash for freedom. At least 12 other inmates were reportedly involved in the plot but did not get away.

Sighted as they emerged from the ground-level window, the trio abducted a girl sitting in a parked car, waiting for her parents, and forced her to drive them to Mifflin where she was released unharmed. Two other cars were stolen in their flight.

All serving long prison sentences, Supt. Arthur L. Glattke identified them as John E. Smith, 21, and James Hale, 19, both of Cincinnati, and George Primm, 23, of Akron.

Glattke said the trio made their break through the window in a room adjacent to the west cell block. The bar was pried loose with a short piece of iron.

He said the inmates apparently saw the girl in the car, waiting for her parents who were visiting at the institution. Glattke declined to disclose her name, but police said the car's license was registered in the name of Ina Ray Reinhardt of Portsmouth.

Although an alarm was immediately sounded and guards summoned, the superintendent said the posse lost the machine in the

Debts All Paid, County Still Has $35,498 In Fund

Richland county had $35,498 left over today after paying off its last debt Tuesday, but the money won't be available until Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston authorizes its transfer to the county general fund.

Seeking the transfer, county commissioners today filed a petition in common pleas court, pointing out that since the county's bonds have been retired there is no longer any need to hold the money in the bond retirement fund.

If the transfer is authorized in court, the funds can be used for county operating expenses. The county has no sinking fund to which the money can be transferred. "If we can use the money, it will help us over the tight places for a while, anyway," C. L. Mitchell, chairman of the commissioners, said.

A final $9,000 bond was paid off Tuesday, leaving the county debt-free for the first time in 30 years. The county still has a $30,000 obligation charged against it for relief loans, but the state will provide the funds for paying it off.

IN A HURRY

Woman's Car Crashes Through Window of Store.

ANDERSON, S. C.—(AP)—During the excitement of a downtown fire a small coupe skipped a curb and rammed into the front of a department store.

Disentangling herself, an elderly woman emerged from the car and said she was in a hurry to get to the department store.

"Lady," said the store manager "you're in it. What can we do for you?"

Voters Rush To Register For Election

Courthouse Office Full As Late-Comers View Monday Deadline.

Scores of Mansfielders jammed the county election board office today in a late rush to register or transfer to qualify for voting in the Nov. 5 election.

A. F. Porter, board clerk, predicted registration would reach 20,000 by the deadline Monday night to set a record for the city. The previous high was slightly more than 18,000 two years ago.

The election board will be open until 9 p. m. tonight, Saturday night, and Monday night to handle registrations and transfers. The office opens at 8 a. m. Four additional helpers were on the job today to handle the rush.

Both political parties are conducting campaigns to get as many persons registered as possible. The county Democrats have set up special headquarters from which a registration campaign is being conducted.

Meanwhile, both county organizations girded for busy campaigns for votes during the final month before election, Republicans and Democrats alike are scheduling a series of rallies in the city to bring state, district, and county candidates before voters.

Republicans, who opened their campaign this week, will stage a rally Friday night, Oct. 11 at party headquarters where Gov. John W. Bricker will be the principal speaker. It probably will be his only appearance in Mansfield before election.

Next Tuesday a delegation of county Republicans will go to Pittsfield, Lorain county, for an ox roast. The governor and other state candidates will speak there.

Democrats will get their campaign officially under way Oct. 15 with a rally in Senior High school auditorium. Former Governor Martin L. Davey, seeking a third term after a two-year absence from the state capital, will be the principal speaker. Others who will talk will be John McSweeney, Wooster, Democratic candidate for U. S. senator, and State Audi-

THIRD GAME

Bridges Opposes Turner or Junior Thompson.

BRIGGS STADIUM, DETROIT —(UP)—The sun fought to get through a slight haze today in time to beam down on the third game of the World series between the Detroit Tigers and the Cincinnati Reds.

Early arrivals packed the big double-decked bleachers in center field. Top coats were worn for the first time in the 1940 series, for the air was crisp.

Manager Del Baker of the Tigers will call on Tommy Bridges, the little curve ball genius, to pitch this afternoon.

Cincinnati's pitching choice still was undecided but Manager Bill McKechnie said it would be either Jim Turner or Junior Thompson.

Snakes, Daggers on Flags?---It's Just Hooey!

Shown above is Lois Smith, 18, of 250 Westbrook avenue, pointing out the flag that has caused the "fifth column" scare about the country. If you look hard enough you may see the "snakes" in the stripes. From the look on her face, Miss Smith seems no more concerned about the scare than the FBI was.

SHARP SHOOTER HALTS THIEVES

Motorcycle Officer Martin Captures Two Youths In Stolen Automobile.

When two suspected automobile thieves attempted to get away from Motorcycle Officer Paul J. Martin last night they hadn't figured on his ability as a marksman.

The driver of the car probably owes his life to the fact that a bullet fired from the officer's gun imbedded itself in the back of the seat after crashing through the steel body and piercing a spare tire.

Rated as the police department's champion marksman, Martin fired after the car, foiling an attempt by the driver, to elude him by forcing him into a parked automobile.

The youths, both colored, of Cleveland, surrendered after the machine went over the curb and onto the sidewalk on West First Report Says Company Used Beer, Poker To Frustrate Union.

CLEVELAND —(INS)— A "beer and poker" party given by a supervisor to "frustrate a union meeting" was held for employes of the Northern Ohio Telephone company, Bellevue, the National Labor Relations board charged today in a report which ordered the company to cease its domination of employes.

Oscar Smith, NLRB regional director, said the CIO Utility Workers Organizing committee made the complaint against the company.

More Than 100 Inform City They'll Change Roof Drains

Co-operation of property owners in removing illegal connections of roof drains from the sanitary sewer system was indicated today by the response received at City Hall during the past two weeks.

Some 3,000 residents in the city were notified by letter two weeks ago of the illegal connections and asked to correct the condition within 30 days.

Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton said today that 108 persons have already contacted Sewer Inspector Ray Hines and indicated their willingness to make the correction.

He said during the past week, 79 persons had come to the office in the city building to obtain necessary data concerning the connection of roof drains on their property to the sewers.

Hines reported that 15 residents told him they have already made the change and have asked for an inspection. He said he had 14 other reports, where the connection is in question, that he expected to investigate in the next 30 days.

The administration has sought the co-operation of property owners in an effort to remove the storm water from the sanitary system and eliminate surcharging during rainy periods.

This, they say, will eliminate most of the city water-in-the-basement trouble.

FBI Blames Fifth Column Flags on 'Mass Hysteria'

Those Automobile Stickers of Old Glory Create a Lot of Turmoil, Lead to Fantastic Stories.

By GEORGE SATTLER

Hitler, Mussolini and Stalin—with two snakes as companions—have invaded Mansfield, hiding themselves in the folds of an American flag!

Fantastic? Well, not exactly. At least there is a countless number of Mansfielders who would raise their right hand to the sky, cross their hearts, and whisper it to you as gospel truth.

Ask them what this is all about and they will probably take you to a nearby automobile and show you a sticker of an American flag pasted on the window of the car.

And without even asking you to put your imagination in high gear, they'll point out three white lines cutting through the field of stars and inform you these are three daggers, representing the three dictators.

Then, before you can say "phooey," they will point out two dark shadows cutting across the red and white stripes. These, they will point out to you in an awesome voice, are snakes.

Their conclusion is that this is a seditious flag, a fifth column trick bent on aiding in the destruction of the United States government.

The story gained so much momentum and so many people were taken in by the yarn that it took the Federal Bureau of Investiga-

NARROW ESCAPE

King Arrives on Scene Just After Whistle Bomb.

LONDON—(UP—King George narrowly escaped a German "whistle bomb" today as Nazi air raiders dived through cloudy skies in steady attacks on many British objectives, including London.

Not a minute before the king arrived at a hall in central London a great bomb hurtled from the clouds and sent hundreds scurrying to shelters.

Almost before the sound of the bomb had died out the king arrived on schedule and entered the building.

WESTERVILLE —(INS)— Students at Otterbein college today received assurance from Dr. J. Ruskin Howe, president of the United Brethren supported school, that he would "honor and respect those whose conscience will forbid their bearing arms or taking life in defense of their country."

"We know of no loyalty," President Howe told a chapel meeting, "that takes precedence over that to our country except the loyalty each free man owes to his conscience and his God."

BRENNER PASS TALK CLOAKED WITH SECRECY

New Moves In War Against Great Britain Planned By Axis Leaders.

SHORT MEETING HELD

Position of United States In World Affairs Given Serious Attention.

(By United Press)

THE BRENNER PASS, Itali-German Border — Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini discussed new moves in the war against Great Britain and in the Axis campaign for a new order in Europe and Africa at a three-hour meeting today aboard an armored train.

The Axis offensive against the British empire in north Africa toward Suez or Gibraltar, the position of the United States and of Soviet Russia toward the war were regarded as probable subjects of the conference, as was the question of entry of Spain into the conflict.

But when Mussolini departed southward, presumably for Rome, after the comparatively brief meeting with the Nazi fuehrer, secrecy as to details of the discussion was unbroken.

(At Rome Virginio Gayda wrote in the Giornale D'Italia: "Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini met in the Brenner Pass today to speed up Axis warfare against the British empire and to consider the position of the United States in world affairs.")

(Apparently referring to the United States, Gayda gave assurance that the Brenner meeting was not directed against any country now outside the European conflict.)

Both Nazis and Fascists said the conference would have extremely important results, as has been the case when the two leaders have met in the past. But it was emphasized that no information was to be expected until after plans discussed on the armored train—guarded by alert anti-aircraft gun crews—had been put into effect.

Thus, it was indicated, the Ital-

GUN VICTIM

Squirrel Hunter Shot By Own Gun as He Climbs Fence.

First squirrel hunting fatality in the Richland county area was Wilmar Mackey, 23, who died this morning at Pomerene Memorial hospital, Millersburg, of a wound inflicted by his own .16-gauge shotgun.

Mackey was taken to the hospital yesterday after he had accidentally discharged the gun into his left side while climbing a fence on his father's farm near Welcome.

Members of the family said Mackey had left the field where he was working at 11 a. m. to shoot a squirrel. When he failed to return home after 1 p. m. a search was started. An older brother found him beside the fence with the wound in his side. He was taken in an ambulance to Pomerene hospital.

ITINERARY

Democratic Headquarters Reveals Wallace Booking in State.

COLUMBUS—(UP)—Democratic headquarters today disclosed the itinerary of Henry A. Wallace, Democratic vice-presidential candidate, when he comes to Ohio Oct. 18 on a political visit.

He will arrive in Cincinnati in the morning for a breakfast meeting, later he speaks at Hamilton and at noon he addresses a luncheon in Dayton. Then he speaks at afternoon rallies in Springfield, Urbana and Bellefontaine before reaching Kenton where he will deliver a major speech at a farmers' fish fry.

BIGGEST HAUL

Federal Agents Get 250 Gallon Still, Mash in Cleveland.

CLEVELAND —(AP)— Agents of the federal alcohol tax unit reported today their biggest haul of the year in this district—a 250 gallon still, 4,000 gallons of mash and 280 gallons of freshly made whisky.

Five persons were arrested and two automobiles seized in the raid on a three-story house on Cleveland's south side.

America Given Challenge Over Foreign Policy

His Nation Will Fight If United States Enters European War or Mixes In Far East, Matsuoka Says.

By LARRY SMITH
(INS Staff Correspondent)

(Copyright 1940 by International News Service. Reproduction in whole or part strictly prohibited.)

TOKYO—Japan will declare war upon the United States if that nation enters the European conflict or insists upon preservation of the status quo in the Pacific Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka told this correspondent today.

In the first interview he has granted since assuming his duties in the new cabinet of Premier Prince Fumimaro Konoye, the American-educated foreign minister said:

"Japan will be compelled to fight the United States if our sister nation on the shores of the Pacific enters the war in Europe."

In the first definite official clarification of the recently signed tri-partite military agreement pledging Japan to fight alongside Germany and Italy in the event war involves the United States, Matsuoka said:

"I fling this challenge to America.

"If she in her contentment is going to blindly and stubbornly stick to the status quo in the Pacific, then we will fight America.

"For it would be better to perish than to maintain the status quo."

With his blunt warning that Japan would spring to arms without delay if the United States joins the war against the Axis powers, Matsuoka expressed the hope that America, despite her desire to aid Great Britain, would hesitate before throwing the entire world into conflagration.

Japan's pact with Italy and Germany, he made clear, compels this country in black and white to fight in such a contingency. The national word has been given, he said, and the country's national honor has been pledged to see that Japan holds up her end of the bargain.

"Frankly," Matsuoka declared, "Japan, Germany and Italy entered into the pact to prevent the United States from becoming involved in the present European war.

"For we all fear that if the United States comes in, it will developed into a vital and disastrous conflict.

"We wish to avoid this international conflict and this pact is an

BRITISH COAST HEAVILY BOMBED

Nazi Raiding Planes Thunder In Relays Up Thames To Attack London.

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—As if to even war scores after Britain announced destruction of nine Axis submarines and a destroyer, German planes in relays thundered up the Thames against London this afternoon and blasted viciously at a southeast coast town.

British sources said that the pounding of the unidentified southeast coast town—in an area long regarded as the likeliest place for an attempted German landing—was the worst it had experienced.

Earlier, in the same region, German coastal guns on the French shore picked a British convoy out of the murky dawn on the Strait of Dover and raked the ships with booming salvoes.

It was not disclosed in London whether the Germans scored any hits, but it was said that the convoy, tugging its own anti-aircraft balloon barrage, steamed on around the coast.

The roar of attackers coming up the Thames estuary signaled the Nazis' return to the battle of London after the quietest night of the 27 since the air siege of the capital began.

Running Mate Joins Willkie In Pittsburgh

ABOARD WILLKIE TRAIN EN ROUTE TO PHILADELPHIA—(AP)—A colorful Willkie-McNary rally at Pittsburgh, where the Republican presidential nominees urged a change in administering the Wagner labor act, touched off a statewide party drive that moved today into eastern Pennsylvania cities.

It was the first time that Wendell L. Willkie and Sen. Charles L. McNary of Oregon, running mates on the Republican national ticket, had spoken from the same platform. An audience last night in brightly-lighted Forbes field, estimated by police at 30,000, cheered them again and again.

Willkie, upholding the principle of collective bargaining in a speech devoted solely to labor problems, described administration of the Wagner act as "one of the most shocking tragedies in the history of American industrial relations."

"The troubles lie, in the main," he said, "not with the act, but with its administration.

"It would therefore seem to me wise, before materially changing the act, as many suggest, to change the administration of it. This would require some special legislation, but that problem is not insuperable.

"If a wiser administration of the act does not produce the results that we all want—good relations between labor and industry,

Reds Score Run In Opening Frame of Third Series Tilt

BULLETIN

BRIGGS STADIUM, DETROIT —(AP)— The Cincinnati Reds continued their unexpected heavy hitting today as they scored a first inning run off Tommy Bridges, Detroit Tiger veteran right hander, in the third game of the world series.

(By Associated Press)

BRIGGS STADIUM, DETROIT —Two Tennessee boys who made good in baseball, Tommy Bridges and Jim Turner, shared the spotlight today as the Detroit Tigers and Cincinnati Reds collided in the third game of the 1940 World series.

The sun broke belatedly through Detroit's morning mist to provide bright, cool weather for the game. Although the big park was sold out to its capacity of about 55,000, fans holding reserved seats were late arriving.

Turner, 34-year-old right-hander, who won 14 and lost 7 in season, was an overnight choice of Manager Bill McKechnie for the starting assignment. The surprise change in Cincinnati's lineup was big Ernie Lombardi, the injured catcher.

McKechnie said Lombardi, who sprained an ankle on the Reds' last eastern swing, had improved daily and wanted to try playing. The low screen in left field, 340 feet from the plate, may have looked inviting, too.

Bridges, who had a record of CHAPTER 3.

Fever burned in Jocelyn's veins. She sat quietly at her desk in the office and tried to concentrate, to think quietly. Was Kent upstairs, in his studio? The advertising agency for which he worked was on the top floor. She could telephone. Better, she thought, with her pulses suddenly hammering, better to go up. Her absence from the office for a few minutes would not be noticed.

Trembling in a sudden ecstasy of hope, she went up.

No, Mr. Dunham wasn't in. He might be in later, to get his things. "We're losing our darling," said Jean Pettigrew, who was common.

Jocelyn said she would leave a message, said she would not; asked that Mr. Dunham telephone her when he came in.

"I'll tell little Kentsy-wentsy!" promised Jean. Jocelyn knew she was laughing, deep down inside, at the stenographer who had such a crush on handsome Mr. Dunham. Well, it didn't matter what girls like Jean Pettigrew thought!

Then to wait. And how she detested waiting! This was a quiet, empty Saturday morning: the office staff was almost idle. Jocelyn's only moment of real occupation was when Philip Fordyce came in ,to dictate a letter to his wife, who was in New York. They had been divorced for many years, and Janet Fordyce had been married twice since her divorce, but there was a child, Norma, their only interest in common now. Norma must be 16 or 17, Jocelyn calculated, as she dutifully took down the dictation; the letter was about the cshild.

All the world knew about young Norma Fordyce, for her grandfather had been the great Lockey, inventor of the Lockey car, and had left the bulk of his enormous fortune to his only grandchild. His daughter had been richly benefited, too, in his will, but Janet's extravagances and her matrimonial ups and downs had considerably impoverished her interests. Norma's wealth, on the other hand, left in the original investment in the great motor company and handled by her father, had increased by leaps and bounds, so that today she was one of the conspicuous heiresses of the world, followed by newspaper and social sleuths wherever she went, proclaimed as the potential glamour girl of all glamour girls, and already bidding fair to satisfy a sensation-craving public with a diet of steady eccentricities.

She was a beautiful, wild little creature, who had been consigned at the time of her parents' divorce to her father's care, but with a promise that under proper circumstances she might spend three months each year with her mother. Circumstances had not, unfortunately, always been favorable to either course, and much of Norma's time, since her small-girl days, had been spent in boarding schools and camps and in trips with tutors, nurses, governesses, maids.

Usually letters concerning Norma went through the office of the Lockey family lawyers, Jocelyn supposed; today's note was the first with whose contents she had ever been made acquainted. It was brief.

"Just say 'Dear Janet, I'm delighted of course that the child's coming to me,'" dictated Philip. "'I've gotten hold of Mother, and we're opening the Burlingame place. There are lots of nice kids here and she ought to have a fairly decent time,' " the letter concluded. "And sign it 'Phil,'" said Philip. "I haven't time to wait for it."

Jocelyn smiled at this, involuntarily, and looking up expectantly for further directions, saw that he was smiling back.

"She's on the loose again," Philip explained. "Something's gone haywire with her schooling. I don't know quite what it's all about. Her mother took her to some place in Florence last September, and she's runaway—she's in New York now. Janet cabled some Frenchwoman she knew to get hold of her and bring her over, but of course Janet doesn't want the responsibility of her. She's probably going to be married again. It's an Italian count this time, I believe. He has estates that need about a million dollars' worth of painting and papering, that's all. She wrote us about it last week She wants money."

To this, marveling, Jocelyn could find nothing to say. After a smiling moment and a little shake of her head, she went back to the letter.

"You're opening the Burlingame place?"

"Yes, my mother'll be here. She's in Florida now, but she'll come. And we're trying to get an old governess for Norma, she was Janet's governess, as a matter of fact. Miss Sanderson. She'll keep the kid in line."

"The Florence school wasn't so good?"

"She hated it. Climbed over a wall and cut her arms on broken bottles so that we had to get her into a hospital. She's a sweet handful, that kid. I hope she marries young. She'll have a month with her mother, and Janet'll see that she gets some clothes and see all the good shows, and then she'll be shipped out here. After that Janet will go to Palm Beach, I suppose. She wants to be married at Netty Roger's place."

"What—" Jocelyn's shadowed purple eyes danced, and a deep dimple appeared in one cheek. "What, if I may ask, was the matter with this last marriage?" she asked delicately.

"Well, Count von Sturnberg kept threatening to kill people," Philip answered with a laugh. "It made her nervous. Every time she was away from home, he suspected her."

"Oh." Jocelyn murmured, almost involuntarily.

"She keeps hoping to find hapiness," the man began seriously, and stopped. "Well, perhaps all of us do!" he added with a sigh. And in another moment he was gone. Jocelyn looked after his departing form sympathetically.

Everyone liked Phil Fordyce. He was a gentleman and a sportsman, polite and rich and appreciative and handsome and clever. He played magnificent golf and bridge and polo and belonged to clubs. He had been everywhere and had talked familiarly with governors and a president or two. He rarely became mad about anything, and when he did, i was impressive. He dressed almost too well. All the appointments of his office were magnificent—silver, crystal, ivory, polished steel hammered into polished bronze.

It was now twenty minutes past twelve. No word, no sign from Kent. Jocelyn telephoned his office; he had not come in. She began to tremble with anxiety and nervousness, and presently, with a sudden reach for the telephone, a sudden agitated jerking over the dial numbers, she called Una Booth.

"Nina, this is Jocelyn. How is everything?"

"My dear, this great furry cat is pressing himself right against my mouth! Tipsy, get down!"

Jocelyn felt an instant chill. Una was sparring for time.

"Una, what are you doing today?"

"Well—" Was she really disengaging the cat, or was she looking at Red for advice? "We have no plans, we've been talking of everything," said Una laughingly, after an almost imperceptible pause. "Red's out at this minute, but when he comes back I suppose we'll make up our minds!"

"Horrible about Kent's going, isn't it?"

"Kent and Lilian. It's awful."

Another hint of hesitation. Jocelyn felt a rueful, scornful twist come into her own expression. Una never bothered much about Lilian. This was a new attitude.

"They go Monday," Jocelyn said. The statement fell flatly into silence.

"I know; it's rotten!" Una said. And then briskly, as if she had found at last the swift way out of the conversation, "We ought to do something quite drastic about it, oughtn't we? Lilian's gone, you know; I said good-bye to her yesterday. I'll tell you, Jocelyn, I'm just awake and everything's fuzzy. We were out at a Press Club party last night and got home at six. But I'll tell you, let's—Where'll you be this afternoon? If I can stir up anything—"

"Kent said something about going over to Covey's," Jocelyn put in eagerly, as the other woman's voice again hesitated for a second.

"Well—" Another little flag in the conversation. "Well, suppose I telephone you?" Una asked.

"They're going over there without me," Jocelyn thought. Aloud she said "I was going to go to Sausalito. But if there was any plan for today, of course I'd put it off. So do telephone me, Una."

"I'll do that very thing!" It was too spontaneous; too carefully sincere; too obviously relieved.

Tygers Seek Fourth Straight Win Against Quakers

Mansfield May Employ Aerial Attack Tonight

Coach Snyder's Combine Enters Affray As Favorites Against New Philadelphia.

WITH a starting line-up of 10 juniors and only one senior, the Mansfield Tygers will go in quest of their fourth straight victory of the season under the floodlights at 8 p. m. today at Stadium field when they play host to New Philadelphia.

Unlike last week, Coach Paul Snyder's athletes will go into tonight's battle full of confidence and the heavy favorites.

In four starts this season, New Philadelphia has failed to win one of their contests, and Coach Woodrow Hayes, trying to get his team on winning ways, is also expected to start a team of under-classmen.

Working all week with his charges in an effort to develop a passing attack, one department the Tygers have been weak in all season, Snyder is expected to send his team into the game with instructions to take to the air.

Camera Catches Tigers' Only Error as Reds Win

Cincinnati Changes After Redleg Victory

By CHARLES MARTIN
(News-Journal Sports Editor)

CINCINNATI — This city today has regained the World series fever after the way the Redlegs brushed the Detroit Tigers aside here at Crosley field yesterday to even the series.

After the opening game you couldn't find a Redleg fan who thought the club had a chance of winning a title . . . But today it was a different story. . . .

"Listen, we got Jim Turner, Junior Thompson and Paul Derringer to use at Detroit and you can bet we'll come through with two wins," was the way one fan expressed the feeling.

The first time the Cincinnati crowd showed any series spirit was in the second inning of yesterday's game when the club punched over two runs.

All the Cincinnati players stand as far back in the batter's box as possible . . . While the Tigers planted their spikes a little in front of the plate.

Apparently the Cincy teammates took the victory in easy stride . . . Not a mate in the dugout raced out to greet the team after Bucky Walters fanned Rudy York and made Bruce Campbell pop to Billy Myers in the ninth.

Walters raced toward the plate and embraced Jimmy Wilson . . . Several of the regulars patted Walters on the back when they left the diamond . . . Al Schacht again had the spectators roaring with his antics.

He put on a pitching performance that had the fans in stitches . . . Fans, who set on nearby buildings and in windows paid a dollar a seat . . . a number of persons stood on stilts around the fence in the outfield watching the game.

Bleacherites made sure they had seats for the second game . . . They stayed in front of the bleacher ticket office from 11 p. m. Wednesday night . . . until game time . . . playing cards by candlelight and setting along the fence wrapped in blankets . . . A number of feminine fans were in the gang.

John Gorsica, who replaced Schoolboy Rowe in the fourth held Cincinnati to one hit—a scratch single by Wilson in the eighth . . . The Tiger moundsman faced 15 players in the four and two-third innings.

When Walters walked the first two men to face him and Charlie Gehringer slashed a single to right field the sports scribes began muttering "It's going to be the same old story—too much power."

Buck's first pitch was outside and got Wilson . . . Gorsica, incidentally, pitched about eight innings of ball . . . He started warming up in the second when Cincy scored twice and he continued to work in the bull pen until he went into the contest.

Fans nearly went wild in the ninth when Bucky whiffed York . . . it was the second time he did it . . . Spectators held their breath in the first of the ninth when Hank Greenberg's towering drive looked like it might clear the fence in centerfield . . . But Jim Ripple dashed back near the 382-foot mark to snag the fly.

Joe Beggs started warming up for the Reds as the ninth opened and those watching him marveled at his speed and control . . . Judge Landis, who sat in the first row near the Tiger dugout had a peculiar way of watching the game . . . He sat with his elbows on his knees almost the entire contest.

Walters' brilliant stop of Gehringer's slow roller in the 4th was a feature of the tilt . . . He raced to his right, jumped high and the ball stuck in the tip of his glove.

Myers and Bill Werber keep the fans in suspense on every ball they field . . . Both take the grounders, hold the ball a second or so and then rifle it to Frank McCormick . . . A couple of plays were two close for comfort yesterday.

Ripple's homer in the third just cleared the fence in front of the bleachers in right field . . . And was Bruce Campbell mad. . . . He tried to snag the ball and then throwed his glove to the ground.

* * *

Pop and beer bottles came from the bleachers . . . and Campbell didn't like it a bit.

Defends Crown In 20th Bout

Armstrong Makes Defense Of Title Against Zivic.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Hammerin' Henry Armstrong, the record-dustingest fighting man since the Marquis of Queensbury wrote the book, adds another mark tonight for the flailers of the future to shoot at.

The little buzz-saw, who skyrocketed out of Los Angeles four years ago and became the first fighter to hold three world championship simultaneously makes the 20th defense of his welterweight crown against the challenge of rough, tough Fritzie Zivic in Madison Square Garden. Some 15,000 customers and a gate of $40,000 are expected for the festivities.

If you listen to the gambling boys, it'l perpetual motion has no more to fear this time than from any of the contenders he brushed off since he took the title from gallant Barney Ross back in 1938. They're quoting odds of 1 to 3 today in the Broadway betting booths, and there were few takers.

NEWARK WINS SECOND LITTLE SERIES TILT, 3-2

LOUISVILLE, Ky. —(AP)— The Newark Bears' chances of winning the Little World's series appeared extremely "bullish" today.

The International league representatives winged to their second victory in as many starts last night over the Louisville Colonels 3-2.

Tom Takes Turn

Bridges Goes To Hill In Effort To Put Tigers Back In Series Lead.

By BILL CORUM

DETROIT — (INS) — Tom (Thumb) Bridges, as game and once as gifted a miniature moundsman as ever stood on that little hill, will try to pitch the Detroit Tigers back into the lead over the Cincinnati Reds this afternoon on the friendly soil of Briggs staduim.

* * *

Tiny Tennessee Tom has done it before and here, in this baseball-mad manufacturing city, they will bet you he can do it again.

Whether he does or he doesn't today, this much goes with the franchise, every inch of Tommy's meager stature and every ounce of his 160 pounds will be in there trying, trying, trying.

Tommy has been a tiger ever since the tiger was a cub, and has led the Detroit pitchers so many seasons that he probably doesn't know exactly how many himself. His control and the red badge of courage he carries into a clutch always have been two of Tommy's greatest assets. But he has a low sweeping curve that also is a delight to the eye (not the batter's eye), and for a half-pint he once could generate plenty of speed.

It can be that father time has touched the little man with the mighty heart on his pitching arm.

If so, your American leaguers are in no honey seat so far as pitching for the rest of the series is concerned. Nobody knows what effect the death of Buck Newsom's dad, shortly after watching his son beat the Reds in the first game, will have on the temperamental South Carolinian.

We walked behind Buck in Crosley field yesterday afternoon, where he went to wish his teammates luck but not to put on a uniform. As we came to the gate a newsboy was calling, "Extra. Extra. Read about death of Buck Newsom's dad."

The big fellow turned his head away as though to shut out the cry, and as he did we saw the tears start and roll down his sunburned cheeks. We thought to ourselves: "Sometimes, even the clown can't laugh."

Five Reds In .300 Circle

Tiger Hitters Fail to Make Charmed Ring in 2 Games.

DETROIT—(INS)—Just to prove that anything can happen in a world series:

A glance at the composite box score of the first two series games today revealed that Detroit's "power" club hasn't a single .300 hitter in the series as yet, while the supposedly weak-hitting Cincinnati Reds have five players within the charmed circle.

Ival Goodman and Eddie Joost led with three hits out of eight trips to the plate for lusty .375 averages. Jimmy Wilson, who was considered "too old to play" before the need for him became desperate, got 2 for 6 for a .333 percentage, and Bucky Walters' double in his three trips gives him a like average. Catcher Baker's single in his only trip add up to a perfect 1.000.

Detroit has four .286 hitters—Bartell, McCosky, Campbell and Higgins.

MEET FREMONT TEAM

Harry Mehock's Senior high school thin clads travel to Fremont tomorrow where they will engage the Fremont Ross high team in a cross country meet. The meet is scheduled for 10 a. m. Eight Mansfield runners will make the trip.

Volunteer---But Not for Army

Photographer who snapped this picture of Johnny Butler, sensational Tennessee back, had to lay on his back and take a chance of being stamped on. As a soph last year, Butler received many rave notices. He is expected to be even better this season.

Bucks, Purdue Tangle In Only Big Ten Football Tilt

COLUMBUS — (AP) — The championship angle will be only one of the disputed points involved tomorrow when Ohio State and Purdue blast open the 1940 Western conference football season.

In the lone conference game of the day the two rivals also will be out to break their 11-year-old percentage tie for the most games won in the Big Ten.

Since 1928 Ohio State has won 41 league games and lost 14. Purdue has a record of 38 and 13. Close behind the leaders but still percentage points off comes Minnesota with a 36-15 mark.

In the Ohio State-Purdue combats, however, the Buckeyes have all the edge. Ohio State has won six of the seven games and is favored to win another here tomorrow.

The defending champions, loaded with veterans, triple threat stars and a highly regarded All America candidate in Quarterback Don Scott, are considered just too powerful for the Boilermakers.

Even so, Purdue, well stocked with veterans of its own, may come up with a surprise if they can co-ordinate their speed and strong aerial attack.

Three dozen Purdue players arrived in town today and immediately went into retreat at nearby Magnetic Springs. They scheduled a secret practice this afternoon.

Outweighed 17 pounds to the man in the line and 15 pounds a man in the backfield, Purdue signified it would depend largely on passes.

The Bucks also devoted yesterday's session mainly to passes, with Dick Fisher at left half in place of the injured Jim Straushaugh. Trainer Tucker Smith said Straushaugh might play if "needed badly" but otherwise would give his crippled ankle another week's rest.

A crowd of 50,000, including 13,000 high school students admitted at reduced prices, is expected for the game starting at 2 p. m. (EST).

Reds' Victory Changes Entire Complex of World Series

Cincy Looks Like Different Club In Win

Bucky Walters Pitches Superb Ball In Beating Tigers; Ripple Stars.

By GAYLE TALBOT

DETROIT—(AP)—A few well-spaced smacks by Cincinnati's batters and one beautifully pitched game by Bucky Walters had changed the entire complexion of the 1940 world series as the reviving Reds tackled the Detroit Tigers in the third struggle of the autumn series at Briggs stadium today.

Before yesterday's game anybody who would have offered a dime for the Reds' chances must either have been psychic or an incurable sentimentalist. The National league champions had looked plain terrible as they lost the opening game at Cincinnati, 7 to 2, and they were the first to admit it.

Today they had to be accounted almost a new ball club. They finally had crashed through and won a world series game, 5 to 3. Bill McKechnie's boys, who have felt for two years that they were a fine ball club, were riding the crest of victory and confident that they were on the brink of showing the American leaguers a thing or two.

It was a brand-new series, as full of fight as a mountain bobcat and packed with potential thrills. The Reds, after losing four straight to the Yankees last fall and another to the Tigers Wednesday, at last had got on the winning track and were out to do no good. A majority of the country's baseball writers who crammed a special train from Cincinnati last night were feeling much better about their original hunch that the Reds were due to win.

There was some substance to their feeling, since Walters had won his game and the Reds had knocked Schoolboy Rowe, Detroit's second-best pitcher, from the hill. The Reds appeared to be in vastly better shape for pitching.

Detroit's logical pitcher today—in fact, about the only flinger Del Baker could call upon—was the veteran Tommy Bridges. This admittedly would be Tommy's last appearance in the big series. Great star as he has been, Tommy still is 34 years of age. He was tired in the latter stages of the American league race and was knocked from the box the last two times he started.

The Reds, on the other hand, had a couple of strong winning pitchers to try to follow the example set by Walters yesterday. It either would be "Milkman" Jim Turner or Junior Thompson, either of whom would be a welcome addition to the Detroit staff at this juncture. And after this pair the Reds could come right back with Paul Derringer, who was knocked from the hill in the opening game, somewhat inexplicably.

Turner, like Bridges, owns to 34 years. He was the National league's leading "rookie" when he joined the Boston Bees in 1937. Some of his intimates, however, swear that Jim was holding the gang plank in place when Pershing said "Lafayette, we are here."

Thompson is one of the National league's most brilliant young pitchers and ordinarily third member of the Cincinnati staff. It was thought, pre-series, that he would face the Tigers in the third game, but Manager Bill McKechnie was struck by the manner in which Mel Harder, a Cleveland old-timer, set down the tearing Tigers in a late, unimportant game last week. He thought he detected a sneaking resemblance between Harder and his own man Turner, who is a crafty son-of-a-gun, himself, so there was a strong feeling that Turner would be his nominee today.

But whatever happened today, the invaders looked the best for pitchers. The Detroiters, whose spokesman was the almost silent Del Baker, had Hank Greenberg and Rudy York, who are bad when they stand up there swinging the polished oak. Cincinnati had the pitching edge. That made it fairly even. It looked like a seven-gamer.

An individual hero? Outside Bucky Walters, who limited Detroit to three hits yesterday, that probably would be Jimmy Ripple.

* * *

He is a somewhat corpulent young gent, who was sent kiting first by the New York Giants and then by the Brooklyn Dodgers. Neither team considered him a big leaguer. Yesterday he came up, an unbeknownst, and slapped a fine left-handed home run into the far distant right field stands with a mate on base. That was the Reds' winning margin. He looked off-hand, like a good man to have around.

SPORTS PARADE

By HENRY McLEMORE

DETROIT, Mich.—(U.P.)—Ol' man Newsom's dead. They held a little service for him in Cincinnati yesterday, and by now his body's on the way to South Carolina, there to join the dust he had known and loved since he kicked it up, barefooted, as a kid.

* * *

The boys who handle such things for the paper told how sad the service was, there in the little undertaking chapel, with only his family and a few friends to hear the good words said They told of tears and sobs and hurt.

* * *

I'm wondering if it really should of been sad.

I'm wondering if Ol' Man Newsom didn't come mighty close to leaving this earth in the perfect way.

Here can't be any denying that he left it happy. Only a few hours before he had seen his boy, his Buck, his Bobo, stand out before 30,000 cheering persons and pitch his team to a World series victory.

And Bobo had been a large part of his life for a long time. Bobo, the swaggering, blustery, happy-go-lucky, big-of-frame fellow who kept making the headlines and whose name kept coming in over the radio.

When Ol' Man Newsom left Hartsville, down there in South Carolina, a few days ago, to watch Bobo pitch for Dee-troit (that's what they call Detroit in Hartsville) he knew he wasn't coming back. When he got his grip all packed, and called the station for the tenth time to see if the train was a-coming through on time, he spent an hour or two calling on his friends.

Up and down the little streets he walked, knocking on doors, ringing bells, and calling from the sidewalk to old pals rocking on the porch or lazying in the swing.

"Goodbye," Ol' Man Newsom said. "I'm going to Dee-troit to see Buck pitch."

His friends all asked what was the meaning of the goodbye—shucks, Dee-troit was gonna win in four straight and Ol' Man Newsom would be back before the week was out.

But the goodbye was said all the same.

Buck's dad knew his heart was bad, mighty bad, and that at 68, with a weak heart, you can't afford to take a long trip without saying goodbye.

He came on to Cincinnati. He saw his boy, his big boy, stand the Reds on their ears. He heard the thunder of voices. Yankee voices, too, cheer his buck.

He was tired when he got back to his hotel, was Ol' Man Newsom. Feeling sort of po'ly. Had the miseries here and there. But he had the strength to hug his boy, to tell him how proud he was of him.

Then he went to bed.

Around 2:30 in the morning the doctor called big Buck. Said you'd better come over. Your dad's had an attack.

When Buck got there his dad was feeling a little better. Said, Lissen, son, I'm all right, you go on back to your room and get some rest.

But he hugged Buck again before he let him go. Put his shaky hand in Buck's big hand and as his son went out the door, waved a soft little goodbye.

Just before dawn Ol' Man Newsom died. Easy like. Just drifted out.

You just know that he went with music in his ears—the sweetest sort of music. The music of 30,000 persons paying tribute to his boy—his Buck.

Ol' Man Newsom's gonna rest mighty easy in Hartsville.

Series Sidelights

By FRITZ HOWELL

CINCINNATI—(AP)—Serious sallies on the series!

Unless attendance picks up a bit at Detroit today in the third game of the World series, the principal actors in the big baseball classic are liable to get a slight slash in cash.

With the two openers at Cincinnati out of the way, attendance and receipts are a country mile behind the 1919 figures set in the Yankee-Red event which ended in a 4-0 rout for the Gothamites.

The first two games at Yankee Stadium last year attracted 118,332 paying customers, the cash registers ringing to the cheery tune of $445,058. This year, in the limited-capacity Cincinnati park, the two tilts drew only 62,443 fans, and receipts of $292,242.10.

The players' pool last year, with the New York contests out of the way, totalled $226,979.58, while this year's two-game cash for the all-star cast was only $149,196.47—a slight difference of $77,783.11, which "ain't hay."

The players cash in on only the first four games, so the Detroit fans had better flock into the Stadium today and tomorrow if they want the boys to get the right kind of a bonus for their good work this season.

Of course, the Tigers and the Reds aren't the only ones who will go hungry this winter if the ante isn't "upped," for the next three clubs in each loop cut a slice out of the world series coin.

And that fund, which for the first two scraps last year soared to $151,319.72, is down to $99,464,32 this season. Commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis, who took about 90 players away from the Tiger chain this year and then sat back to watch them take the American loop bunting, also comes in for a slash, on present returns. The judge, who derived $66,758,70 from the first two 1939 games, has only $43,880.31 coming from the Cincinnati set.

It looks like these baseball players could make up their minds where they can do the best job, but it seems they can't. Take Bucky Walters, the Cincinnati Red pitching ace, and John Joseph Perry Gorsica, the 23-year-old Detroit right-hander.

Bucky started out as a third sacker (and a pretty good one, too) with the Phillies, but Jimmy Wilson, then skipper of the Philadelphia club, talked him into a fling at flinging.

Bucky did it, and was the National loop's most valuable player last season, won 22 and lost 10 this year, and pitched and batted the Reds right back into the world series yesterday with a three-hitter against the Tigers and a neat double and a run for himself.

Gorsica, who started baseballing as a career but three years ago, was a first baseman when he joined the Beckley, W. Va., farm of the Tigers in 1937. Someone talked him into taking a turn on the mound, and he liked it.

He became a hurler, and yesterday, after winning seven and losing seven in his first year in the majors, he turned the Reds back with a lone hit in four and two-thirds frames, after the Cincinnatians had rocked the Tiger ace, Schoolboy Rowe, for eight bingles, and five runs in three and one-third stanzas. The kid got 14 of the 15 men who faced him, Wilson's scratch hit to third sacker Mike Higgins being the only thing that looked like a solid blow.

TODAY it looked like Jim Turner, the Red's big eating pitching star, against Tommy Bridges, Detroit's curve ball artist. Each is 34 years old, so it's a battle of veterans.

The only difference is that Turner spent 14 years in the minors before hitting the big time with Boston in 1937, while Bridges has been a major leaguer since 1930. Bridges has three world series wins against no defeats, while Turner has a 0-0 record in the big classic.

ACT TO ENFORCE PARKING BAN ON 6 CITY STREETS

Officials Map Plan To Speed Traffic and Reduce Danger on Thoroughfares.

City officials today were preparing to enforce a partial parking ban ordered on six streets a month ago by city council.

To bring about a speedier movement and to eliminate congestion hazards, council has prohibited parking on one side of sections of Lexington and Blymyer avenues and South Mulberry, Flint, Hedges and East First streets.

Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton said that curbing on one of the streets had already been painted and that when a new supply of paint is available three others would be marked. Two other streets are to be posted with signs.

He said that when the thoroughfares were properly marked the police department would be expected to enforce the ordinance the same as on restrictions in the business district.

South Mulberry street between West First and Arch street has already been marked. The curb will be painted on Lexington avenue between South Main street and the city limits; Flint street from South Main street to Adams street, and Hedges street from Park avenue east to East First street.

Signs On These Streets.

Signs will be posted on Blymyer avenue between West First and Glessner avenue, and on East First street from Hedges to South Main street.

Crafton said the city had planned to purchase the markers but instead will make them from sheet metal and paint and letter them. They will be mounted on steel posts at the curb line.

The ordinance banning parking on one side of the streets was passed by council as an emergency at its Sept. 3 meeting on recommendations from the traffic committee headed by Councilman Arthur L. Croak.

Croak indicated that the ban on the six thoroughfares was only the start of a city-wide program to prohibit parking in congested areas.

PATROL CHECKS 45 ACCIDENTS DURING MONTH

Arrest Record Reaches 97 For Officers in Mansfield Office During September.

A total of 45 accidents were investigated and 97 arrests were made in September by state highway patrolmen from the Mansfield station, a report issued by Corp. C. F. Strayer, officer in charge, showed today.

Of the 45 accidents, one resulted in fatal injuries, 22 in property damage, and 22 in injuries to occupants, the report said.

Altogether, 53 persons were injured and property damage was estimated by patrolmen at $13,350 in the 45 accidents.

According to the report, most dangerous day for driving during the month was Sunday, with 12 accidents. Next most dangerous day was Thursday, with eight accidents, including one fatal collision.

The report also showed that the highway with the most accidents during the period was Route 30-S, where 10 accidents were investigated. Next most dangerous was Route 42 with six accidents.

Most dangerous times to travel, the report showed, were at 3 p. m. and 5 p. m.

Speeding topped the list of chief accident causes. Drunken driving was second; failure to stop for a stop sign, third, and defective equipment was forth.

Nine accidents resulted from speeding, four from drunken driving, four from failure to stop for stop signs, and four from defective equipment. The rating was computed on the basis of damage done, Corp. Strayer said.

Heading the list of arrests for the month was unsafe and careless driving, with 35 arrests. Speeding was second, with 32 arrests; failure to stop for stop signs third, with 10 arrests, and drunken driving fourth, with eight arrests.

Twelve other arrests for other offenses were made by patrolmen during the month.

Health Officials Check 50 For Diphtheria Suspects.

With a case of diphtheria reported in Shelby high school, Richland county health authorities took steps today to prevent any possible spread of the disease.

Dr. Roy C. Rehder, health commissioner, said Herbert Hart, 11-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Hart, Jackson township, was taken ill while at school yesterday.

Throat cultures of nearly 50 children who rode the same school bus were taken yesterday afternoon. The steps were taken to eliminate any spread of the disease among the children, the commissioner said.

The case is the seventh reported in Richland county this year. Dr. Rehder urged parents to provide their children with protection against diphtheria by having them immunized.

Books For Children

(Available at Mansfield Public Library)

Two new stories about our neighbors on this continent may be found in the children's room now. The first is from the Philippine Islands and the other is from the country of Honduras in Central America. Teachers may welcome these stories as background for studies that will be made this year of American neighbors and their ways of living.

THAT MARIO, by Lucy Herndon Crockett—"That Mario" was what every one said when they watched that lazy little boy sitting under his favorite tree dreaming of strange places and beautiful things. At last he set out to go to Manila to see if his dreams were true. Of course they weren't, but the adventures taught him how many things he didn't know about people away from home.

QUETZAL QUEST, by Von Hagen and Hawkins—What is a quetzal? It is a tropical bird that you would rarely see even in a zoo, but have you ever wondered how such rare birds are sometimes captured? Chico was a native Indian boy in Honduras chosen as a guide on an expedition in search of quetzals and his story is delightful reading.

HIT AND RUN

BELMONT, Cal. — (INS) — Belmont firemen are busily tracking down a hit-and-run earthquake with an apparent grudge against their firehouse.

Twice in recent weeks "quickie" quakes have jolted the fire station for brief intervals, although they were not felt elsewhere in town and were not recorded on seismographs in the area.

Spectacular Drama.

Said to be one of the most spectacular pictures ever filmed the production of "Brigham Young, Frontiersman," opens Saturday at the Ohio. This thrilling story, written for the screen by Louis Bromfield, co-stars Tyrone Power, Dean Jagger and Linda Darnell. All the exciting episodes of the epic Mormon trek from Illinois to the Great Salt Lake were filmed in this drama. Some of the high points include the invasion of crickets and the miracle of the sea gulls; the massacre at Nauvoo, when masked raiders sacked the city.

Rex Beach Novel.

"Flowing Gold," thrilling saga of life and love in the Texas oil fields opens Saturday at the Madison. The film was taken from the Rex Beach immortal novel and stars John Garfield, Frances Farmer and Pat O'Brien. The story is of a young drifter doomed to the life of a fugitive after killing a man in self-defense. The co-feature is the ever-funny Joe E. Brown in "So You Won't Talk?"

Karloff Chiller.

"Before I Hang," the latest chiller, showing tonight and Saturday at the Majestic, stars Boris Karloff as a scientist searching for a cure for old age. Experimenting on himself, he unknowingly inoculates his own body with a serum containing blood from a hanged murderer. Other members of the cast include Evelyn Keyes and Bruce Bennett. Co-attraction is "Billy, the Kid in Texas," starring Bob Steele.

Sale of Babies.

The sensational expose of the illegal adoption and sale of infants is given in "Babies for Sale," playing at the Park. The indictment of disreputable nursing homes is based on a series of front-page stories which startled the nation recently with revelations of a widespread racket. Rochelle Hudson, Glenn Ford and Miles Mander head the cast. The second feature is "Pals of the Saddle," featuring the three mesquiteers.

Boy and His Dog.

James Street's well-liked Saturday Evening Post story about a boy and his dog, "The Biscuit Eater," is showing through Saturday at the Ritz. The leading role is played by Billy Lee, 10 yeas old, and tells of the everyday life in the picturesque Georgia hunting country and deals with a spunky youngster who adopts a despised hound and turns him into a blue ribbon champion. Co-feature is Roy Rogers in "The Carson City Kid."

HOT HAMMER

BUCYRUS — Becoming suspicious of a stranger, slightly tipsy, with a brand new hammer protruding from his pocket, Police Chief Arthur Stuckert took the man into custody, Thursday. Investigation disclosed that the hammer had been "lifted" at the Cussins and Fearn store on South Sandusky avenue.

The man, giving his name as Terence J. Lynch of Columbus, was sentenced to 30 days in the Columbus workhouse and fined $50 on a shoplifting charge, when arraigned before Mayor William F. Whiteamire.

JAPS THREATEN CONFLICT WITH UNITED STATES

Foreign Minister Matsuoka Says Nippon Ready To Declare War.

eloquent expression of Japan's wishes. It is, however, definitely a pact of peace and the American people must understand it as such."

In this extraordinary interview, the first given to any correspondent since Japan linked her fate with the Axis powers, Matsuoka displayed marked impatience with the attitude of the United States and with the new American embargoes "which threaten the peace of the Pacific."

(Editor's note: President Roosevelt has declared an embargo on export of scrap iron to Japan, effective Oct. 16.)

He then threw down the challenge that the United States "must recognize the new order in the Far East or face responsibility for war in the Pacific and in the entire world."

"I have always considered America my second home land," Matsuoka, who was educated at the Oregon law college, declared.

"I have always known the American people as a good and decent people, so it grieves me to realize that today America is the most unprogressive nation on earth, clinging to old conceptions and attempting to impede those who desire a swift change to the better.

"Japan can no longer be strangled in her desires to establish a new order of mutual prosperity in her sphere in East Asia, and has taken a place with the major powers of the world which desires to establish and maintain a new order of mankind."

Dramatically the one-time humble house boy and Oregon university graduate who has become foreign minister of this far eastern empire accused the United States of responsibility for the trouble in Europe today. He said:

"The United States and Great Britain, it is clear to me, have forced the Axis powers into the use of force in Europe.

"Germany and Italy are not to blame for what they are doing. The United States must once and forever understand that the new order is here, otherwise there is no use in looking forward to a peaceful settlement.

"Naturally the United States desires talks and discussions for other methods of settlement, even over a period of several years, because the United States can wait. They are in no hurry.

"It is nice for the United States to say that we must settle everything peacefully, but if we wait for America, we must perish in the years of waiting.

"So I say to America: 'Now is the time for action, and Japan will not hesitate when its hour arrives.'"

Matsuoka hinted time and again in the course of the interview that he would broadcast an appeal direct to the American people "at the psychological moment" in an effort to give them a true picture of the current far eastern situation.

"Whether or not the European war becomes a general world war is purely in the hands of the United States at this moment," he said.

"American must see clearly the spirit of the tri-partite pact which is candidly aimed at them.

"We in Japan would welcome frank and rapid diplomatic exchanges with full understanding and broad-mindedness with a view toward peace. But if the United States continues such measures as tightening embargo she will only further anger the Japanese nation.

"You must admit we have been bearing all this pressure with remarkable patience. I wonder, were the situation reversed, if the American people would stand for it so long. They would already be at war."

Matsuoka closed the interview by expressing a wish for peace and improved Japanese-American relations "from the bottom of my heart and with all human sincerity."

Warns Japan On Aid to Britain

TOKYO—(U.P.)—Takichiro Suma Japanese foreign office spokesman, today warned of the possible danger that the United States would double its war aid to Great Britain.

Suma, in a radio address concerning the new Berlin - Rome - Tokyo military alliance indicated that this possibility and also the possibility that the United States might openly enter the war at the side of Great Britain were important factors in negotiation of the pact.

He said, however, that the prime purpose of the alliance was to unite the three powers in protecting and building their new world order.

Newspapers charged that Canada was intensifying anti-Japanese sentiment and that the government was giving serious consideration to reports of anti-Japanese measures proposed by the Vancouver municipal assembly as result of Japan's inclusion in the Berlin triple pact.

Premier Backs Up Matsuoka Stand

TOKYO—(U.P.)—Domei, Japanese news agency, quoted Premier Prince Konoye tonight as saying that "whether the Pacific will become the scene of war or peace solely depends on whether Japan and the United States will respect and understand each other's position."

In an interview at Kyoto with the Japanese press the premier urged the United States to reconsider her previous position and "positively cooperate with Axis construction of a new world order."

"Nevertheless should the United States deliberately refuse to understand the true intentions of Japan, Germany and Italy and consider the triple alliance hostile to herself and challenge the Axis nations, the Axis would be ready to accept such a challenge and fight to the finish," Konoye said.

Interview Text Given to Hull

WASHINGTON (INS)— A copy of the International News Service interview with Yosuke Matsuoka, Japanese foreign minister, in which he threatened the United States with war, was laid before Secretary of State Hull today, a few minutes after it had been received in this country.

Because of the extreme delicacy of American-Japanese relations, state department officials declined to make immediate comment, preferring instead to leave any statement that might be forthcoming up to the secretary himself.

They indicated that Hull probably would have something to say later in the day.

Members of the senate and house foreign relations committees, as soon as they learned of the gist of the story, asked for copies which were delivered immediately.

ed the first air alarm since dawn.

The admiralty announcement said an Italian destroyer of the Curtatone class (966-tonners fitted fore minelaying) had been torpedoed and sunk by the British submarine Orisis in the Adriatic Sept. 22.

"The enemy has recently been having a greater measure of success in his U-boat attacks on merchant shipping than during the earlier stages of the war," the admiralty also said, but added that the nine German and Italian submarines had been sunk during this period, while others had been damaged.

(Authorized sources in Germany claimed British shipping losses since the beginning of the war totalled 7,000,000 tons, not including vessels of less than 2,000 tons.)

Dirty weather over London sent German raiders home four hours before dawn today.

Describing weather conditions as "very unfavorable," the British government said the German attacks were concentrated largely on the London area but that bombs also were dropped in other parts of southeast England and at two places in southwest England.

Eleven outlying districts of London were bombed, it was reported, and the raiders also found their way to 20 districts in other parts of England.

"Little damage was done and the number of casualties was small," a government communique said.

Despite a curious quiet along the channel coast—the Dover area was bombless for the first time in 41 days and observers failed to note the customary explosions caused by RAF raids on German "invasion ports" in France—the government said British night operations went on as usual, presumably far inland, in the Reich or in German-occupied territory.

Admit Raids By RAF In Africa

ROME—(U.P.)—British air raids on key Italian positions all the way from the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan through Ethiopia and British Somaliland into Kenya were admitted in Italy's 119th war communique today.

The communique said that in the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan Italian air squadrons had bombed hangars and defense works near Rozeires and enemy camps and strongholds near Gallabat. Gallabat is in the Sudan, just across the frontier from Ethiopia.

"Enemy aviation carried out raids over Berbera (capital of British Somaliland, now in Italian hands) and Afambu, British Somaliland," the communique said.

It admitted that the British also have bombed Italian positions at El Uak in Kenya and railway stations at Agordat, Ethiopia, and Asciа in Eritrea.

"These enemy raids resulted in three dead including one native woman and five wounded," said the communique. "Material damage was limited."

'FIFTH COLUMN' FLAGS TABOOED

tion to write the final chapter to the collection of wild tales that still are being circulated.

In a letter to an oil company here, which circulated the flag, John S. Bugas, a federal agent in the Detroit bureau, branded the tales as an example of "mass hysteria and a case of nerves."

The letter stated that after a thorough investigation agents reported, ". . . there is no foundation for any suspicion that these printed American flags, or the display thereof, indicate an un-American group or position."

Of the "daggers" and "snakes" supposedly in the flag, Bugas wrote: "There was nothing to indicate that the shading and printing of the flags was not merely for the purpose of showing the furling and unfurling of the flags in the wind."

Although the letter did not come right out and say it, it was plain that the federal investigators thought the whole thing ridiculous.

Meanwhile, the rumors about the flag continue to circulate in and around Mansfield. Indignation meetings by the D. A. R., American Legion, and other patriotic organizations throughout the state have been reported.

From nearby Willard, word spread that windshields bearing the sticker had been smashed. A check-up, however, revealed it to be false.

But it was reported that the D. A. R. of Willard had discussed the "fifth column" flag at their meetings, with not a little indignation.

Although the F. B. I. believes that the furor is dying down, stories continued to go the rounds in Mansfield today.

"I heard that the flags were being passed out by communist gasoline station attendents," one Mansfielder said today. "It looks like it's all part of the plot."

An even stranger story has been going the rounds concerning the sticker. One Mansfield woman reported that she had heard that when the sticker was exposed to weather elements for a certain length of time, it gradually turned into a communist flag.

"Some one told me that when the sticker had been rained on a few times, you could see the Communist hammer and sickle as plain as day," she said.

In an effort to track down the rumors here in Mansfield, one man who was interviewed said that his children had pasted one of the flags on the back of his house. A plumber who came to do some repair work at the house saw the flag, took aside the owner of the house, and warned him that he had better take the flag down—or else.

If you hear any more talk about the flag, the wise thing to do is to ignore it. If the F. B. I. feels they've killed another "dragon," why should you worry your heads about it?

Introduced by McNary as a "fearless, straight-thinking, competent American," Willkie received a rising ovation from the crowd.

With the two candidates on the platform in the infield was Republican Chairman Joseph W. Martin, jr., who declared that in the November election the "victory will not be a Republican victory—it will be an American victory."

The presidential nominee said that he stood for "full rights for labor," adding that "with increased rights go increased responsibilities." Dems 'Pour Money Into Main Street'

HELENA, Mont.—(AP)— Henry Wallace, campaigning in the northern great plains, told Montana audiences the Democratic administration is committed to the policy of pouring money into Main Street and onto the farms."

The Democratic nominee for vice president moved into the Dakotas today after an eastward swing across Montana.

Wallace, in a radio address late yesterday at Helena, Mont., declared that Republican charges that Democrats poured money "down rat holes" was "strange talk from a party that made no effort to keep the people's money from being poured into Wall Street before 1929.

"As compared with Wall Street, is Montana a rat hole?" He asked.

"Has the 585 million dollars that we spent or loaned here been thrown away? You know that it has not."

'Instead of pouring money into Wall Street, the policy of the Roosevelt administration is to pour it into Main street and onto the farms where it will fertilize the soil from which all true prosperity grows."

Earlier, at Missoula, Mont., Wallace had declared that "if federal money had not come into Montana we can imagine what would have happened to business, agriculture and industry in the state."

heavy traffic near the Westinghouse plant.

The girl was released and drove back to the reformatory when the inmates abandoned the car near Mifflin and took a parked machine owned by Joseph Carr, 433 Bowman street.

His car was later found wrecked two miles north of Shreve in Wayne county and three men answering the description of the fugitive prisoners were reported to have taken another car owned by a Canton man. They were reported to have headed toward Holmes county.

Report Others In Plot.

Glattke this morning declined to say how many inmates were involved in the break, although it was reliably reported that at least 12 others had made their way from the cell block up through the basement to the room where the bar had been removed.

The superintendent said a guard was stationed at the open window as soon as the break was discovered.

He admitted, however, that he was conducting an investigation today to determine how many of the inmates had participated in the break.

All three of the fugitives were serving terms of 10 to 25 years for robbery.

Primm was committed Oct. 30, 1939; Smith Jan. 12 and Hale on April 23.

Proof of American Opportunities

BETTER than telling a boy that he may sometime be president of the United States, as was once common to elementary schooling, every American boy should be made to realize that he has an opportunity to advance to a high place in whatever field of endeavor he chooses—if he has the initiative, ambition, energy and determination required to develop the necessary ability, and if he is willing to make the sacrifices essential to more than ordinary attainment along any line.

Study of the inside stories of how various presidents of the United States attained to that high position reveals how strongly the element of chance, rather than competency, influenced the selection—so the likelihood of a boy becoming president is too remote to be appealing to any intelligent child—especially if he is bright enough to have been impressed with methods by which presidential and vice presidential nominees were chosen at the recent convention in Chicago.

Preferably, if an example of American opportunity is sought, it would appear much more convincing to point to the record of an Ashland county farm boy—Charles F. Kettering—as typifying the extent to which a normal human brain can be developed by exercise, and to what eminence a boy can advance "if he has what it takes."

A cause of regret, in listening to Mr. Kettering's Wednesday night talk in Mansfield, was that every boy in the city—of junior and senior high school age—couldn't have been there.

For it is some of these boys who must prepare themselves to do such work as is now being done by Mr. Kettering and his associates in the research department of General Motors Corporation—and, in fact, all the other work which requires development of exceptional ability along some particular line.

"Research" is a vague sort of thing, in the minds of many people, and it takes some such talk as that by Mr. Kettering to give better understanding of the time, effort and money being devoted to solving mysteries of chemistry, science and mechanics, so as to constantly find ways of doing things that "can't be done."

Back around 1890, when Charley Kettering's father was much disappointed because the boy was always puttering around with tools and drawings, instead of being interested in farm work, there was no reason to believe that his prospects were any brighter than those of his youthful associates down Loudonville way.

So who can pick out the present-day boy—or boys—who will prepare to fill the big jobs—and which will be the ones to complain at middle age, that they didn't have a chance.

Need for British Offensive

AS THE bitter aerial battling continues between Great Britain and Germany, millions of Americans attempt to forecast the eventual outcome, with opinions based largely on censored news coming out of London and Berlin.

Many writers and observers in the United States also try to interpret the day to day happenings in relation to the probable final result. As, for instance:

"By next spring," writes William L. White, "the Nazis hope to have England softened for invasion. A large part of Britain's industries are huddled around London and can't be moved. So the expensive daylight raids which have cost the Nazis so heavily in pilots will probably give way to continuous, indiscriminate but cumulative devastating night raids. Against this there is no adequate defense but to take the offensive.

"So the British will need this winter plenty of long-range bombers to reach the German munition industries, which are being moved out of the Rhine valley eastward toward Bohemia and Poland. If Germany's industries and rail centers are badly blasted, maybe there will be no invasion next spring."

That seems to be as good a guess as any. But nobody, in this vast tangle of wars, is safe in prophesying anything—except that things will get worse before they get better.

Missiles Thrown at Willkie

THE CITIES of Detroit and Pontiac very properly apologize to Mr. and Mrs. Wendell Willkie for exhibitions of hoodlumism on the occasion of the visit of the Republican presidential nominee and his wife to those cities a few days ago, when missiles were thrown and an egg spattered Mrs. Willkie's dress.

Any city would naturally feel ashamed that even a few of its citizens should evidence their subnormality in such a way as to reflect on the entire city.

The Detroit News commented: "Reasoning would be lost on persons like these . . . we can only regret that the hospitality which every Detroiter of good will extends any American with a message is marred by a few inadvertent creatures who, along with their intellectual disabilities, are thoroughgoing cowards."

Those who take the trouble to notice the type of person who hoots a speaker at a political meeting and during the showing of a news reel or indulges in such misbehavior as throwing missiles at a candidate, should have no difficulty in detecting other evidences of imbecility which are ordinarily quite obvious.

Persons making too close approach to normal mentality do not "boo" to express displeasure, and throwing missiles rates close to the line of demarcation below which idiocy is indicated.

Big Cities as 'Frontiers'

THE NEW American frontiers are in the cities, says Mayor Harold H. Burton of Cleveland. Our federal constitution "never contemplated government of such groupings of population" as we have now, and "the present and coming eras will be intent upon enacting legislation to provide for the proper livelihood of people in these circumstances."

The primary duties of a city government, he says, are "to be honest, to know the laws, to enforce the laws and to be quick in acting." Private citizens themselves can lighten the burdens of city officials by "being honest, knowing and obeying the laws and acting quickly." That will lessen the need of more government and save taxes.

NO TIME FOR DISTRACTIONS

Views on Far East Policy Differ

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON—To a good many observers it appears that the embargo on scrap iron and steel to Japan is locking the stable door after the horses are out.

There are two groups who criticize this policy of kicking Japan in the face. One group is all in favor of it—all in favor of doing everything possible to prevent Japan from conquering China, expanding in the Dutch East Indies or French Indo-China. The criticism of those holding this view is that the embargo ought to have been imposed two years ago, just after the undeclared war between Japan and China started.

Those sharing this view also contend, of course, that the moment the policy was decided upon this country should have begun preparing to fight in case Japan resented our policy in the Far East enough to make trouble.

The other group of critics think the whole situation in Asia is none of our business—that we have been trying to get out of the Philippines for years BECAUSE we did not want the possibility of becoming involved in a war in that part of the world—and that we should not have been making faces at Japan.

WHICH one of these groups is right is a debatable question. Most of us have positive views one way or the other, and it is very difficult for those taking one of the sides to understand the logic of the folks who take the other.

But there is very little difference of opinion that the administration would have been wise if it had been guided by the logic of one or the other of these groups.

Very few men in Washington, if talking confidentially, will not admit that either the administration ought to have steered a neutral course all the way through, or else been more effective in pursuing a hostile course.

THERE has been clamor from a considerable section of the public ever since the Japanese attack on China began, more than two years ago, for this country to embargo scrap iron or anything else that would help the Nippon war machine. This clamor did not get very far because most people, whether they sympathized with it or not, did not dream the United States would take any formal action.

But beginning with the warning of Secretary of State Cordell Hull about the Dutch East Indies, there has been incident after incident calculated to make bad feelings between Japan and the U. S., finally culminating in the very step that was advocated by the pro-Chinese in this country two years ago.

Listen World!

Broke Their Bars

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

(To the Pastors and Priests of America—I am printing today one of the greatest sermons that has ever come my way . . . a sermon that may bring new hope and determination to a bewildered and embittered world, if you will use it with your power and blessing. We are all prisoners. I pass this on to you, in the hope that you will join with Prisoner No. 30735 to set us free from our bars.)

* * *

ROBERT H. DENTON, JR., holds this space today. R. H. D. is a convict—No. 30735—in Oklahoma state penitentiary. By the rating of normal citizens, he has been deprived of everything that makes life worth while. But the spirit has no bars—and Robert Denton has discovered truth behind his prison walls which might liberate many a "free" man, if he had the courage to use it. For what it's worth—and it's worth plenty—I'm giving you the story of a defeated man who has become triumphant because "truth has set him free." He begins:

"Dear Miss Robinson:

"Over six years ago I wrote to you from a death cell here and received in reply the most inspiring letter I ever read in my life. At that time I faced three horrible alternatives; death in the electric chair, a life of insanity in prison, and possibly a life time of insanity as an incurable case, confined to a mental institution. There was then no hope, no known treatment for dementia praecox, but Manfred Sakel of Vienna discovered the insul shock treatment and it came in time to save my life and sanity. Though I was condemned as a criminal, the state authorities accepted the evidence that I could not have been mentally responsible and sent me to a state hospital where I took the insulin shock treatment and remained three years.

"Out of all this I have formed the idea that nothing is impossible; whatever the situation, it is never hopeless. The wars, poverty and misery endured today will enhance the glory, prosperity and peace that will inevitably follow. I believe in the future of America, the civilized world, and my own prospects of success."

Then Robert Denton gives us an example of "success against overwhelming odds." Buried in their cells, poisoned by grim memories, there came to a trio of convicts a flash of sheer beauty—the whisper of a song. For two years, without the slightest outside aid and in the face of incredible handicaps, they worked on that song.

"Marsh, serving a seven-year term for armed robbery, composed the lyrics; McGettigan, serving a five-year prison sentence for burglary, produced the melody, and Duffy, serving a fifteen-year sentence for armed robbery, financed the publication."

Out of that work came a song which is sweeping America at the moment, "Stars Went To Sleep." Today, the royalties of this song are piling up . . . demands for its use are coming by every mail . . . and the trio has five more lyrics ready for publication. But greater than any success story is the attitude of the men who slaved for that success against tremendous odds.

"These men," Denton continues, "worked so hard and consistently that they hardly noticed prison life, its monotony and atmosphere of defeatism. They completely forgot themselves and their personal troubles. There is, I believe, a lesson there for all troubled people whatever difficulties beset them—a great panacea for despair."

There is not space here for the whole of this amazing letter. What its effect on you may be, I cannot know. But as for me—I've never felt so cheap in my life! Here am I with freedom, beauty, comfort, faith and friendliness serving my every step. Yet I struggle hard to hide my discouragement and doubt.

But these men, living constantly under the shadows of prison walls, produce a song of deathless beauty! "Stars Went To Sleep" they call it. But their stars did not sleep. Like that white star of Bethlehem, they flamed above the darkness of poverty and obscurity, dread and despair, blazing a path across the world!

Here's a hand through the bars, No. 30735, to you and three other gallant adventurers. And our gratitude for a greater courage than our own!

Aircraft Builders Balked After Being Told About Tax Increase

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—One of the biggest orders for airplanes which the National Defense Commission has placed with any company was with the Curtiss-Wright Corporation last month. To finance new factories for these planes, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation lent Curtiss-Wright $49,000,000.

But what has never leaked out is that at one time the Curtiss company balked at the taxes it would have to pay and threatened not to build the planes. The incident illustrates the difficulty the defense commission and the treasury have had in pushing ahead the airplane building program.

The Curtiss company, after receiving assurances of its $49,000,000 loan from the RFC, came to the treasury and wanted to know what its taxes would be. The treasury has a system of giving companies a "closing agreement," in other words an exact estimate of what their taxes will be in advance, if a set of advance facts are supplied. If these facts are not changed, then the treasury is absolutely bound to stand by this tax estimate. Furthermore, subsequent commissioners of internal revenue, whether Republican or Democratic, also are bound.

In this case the Curtiss-Wright company asked for an immediate "closing agreement" on its taxes, and the treasury, by working almost day and night, finally supplied it. The tax, using the set of facts supplied to the treasury, was to be based upon an 8-year leasehold which Curtiss was to exercise over the new airplane factories.

However, after the estimate was completed, the RFC changed the set-up to five years, which threw the tax into the category of an outright capital gains tax, and considerably boosted the amount which the aviation company would have to pay the treasury.

It was at this point that the company's officials balked. They protested vigorously at the higher tax to be applied to them. In fact, they told the treasury that it was not Curtiss-Wright which wanted the planes, but the government which wanted them, and strongly intimated that if a more favorable tax was not worked out they would not feel obliged to accept the contract.

However, the treasury stood pat, and the Curtiss people finally came around. They are going ahead with the program.

Poker Stakes.

THERE'S never a dull moment when Jesse Jones, secretary of commerce and federal loan administrator, plays cards with his good friend Defense Commissioner William Knudsen. The two men carry on a running fire of ribbing.

Jones was quick to seize such a chance during a stud poker game the other night. Finding that he had aces back to back, Knudsen bet a dollar. With only a deuce in the hole, Jesse shook his head sadly. "Bill," he said, "you shouldn't have done that."

"Why not?"

"You know as well as I do that you can't afford to bet that much."

"What do you mean, I can't afford to bet that much? You don't know what I've got."

"I wasn't thinking about your cards," replied Jesse with deadpan seriousness. "I was thinking of your salary. You're betting a whole year's pay on one card. That's downright reckless."

Note—Knudsen resigned a $300,000 job to come to Washington, now gets $1 a year. He insisted all night that he was "just learning the game," but wound up winner of $60.

FDR's Farm Advice.

THE president got some smart advice on winning the farm vote from Ed O'Neal brainy head of the American Farm Bureau Federation. O'Neal told him: "Stick to your national defense policies."

O'Neal called on Roosevelt after an extensive tour of farm states and the president was eager to get his views. Almost the first question popped at the farm chief was: "How does it look, Ed? Do you think the farmers will support the ticket?"

Farm Bureau membership is split widely between Democrats and Republicans, so O'Neal is taking no stand in the campaign. But he knows his political onions and Roosevelt has a high regard for his judgment. This is what O'Neal told him:

"Farmers generally appreciate what you have done for them. A lot of them think you have done more for the farmer than any other president. The New Deal record on that is clear and the farmer can figure it out for himself. But, and this is extremely significant, I found that farmers generally aren't so much concerned with this.

"Uppermost in their minds is the international situation. That's what they are thinking about. By and large they are satisfied with the way you have handled the defense program and believe you are sincere in keeping war from our shores. So my advice is, keep plugging away at this and you won't have to worry about the farm vote."

O'Neal also told Roosevelt that the justice department's anti-trust prosecution against big corporations were making a hit with farmers, and that they wanted more defense industries in the West and South.

Note—When Secretary of Agriculture Wickard spoke recently at the Indiana state fair, he had an audience of several thousand. But before he finished a lot of them walked out. Grinning, he told friends later, "I sure am glad I made that speech here where I have a lot of personal friends who felt they had to stick it out. Otherwise I guess I'd have lost the entire audience."

L. M. Cleveland—There are exactly 93 former U. S. naval planes on Martinique, sold to France before she surrendered. They have been unloaded from the airplane carrier and are now uncovered on shore, exposed to tropical rains. If not put under cover or brought back to the United States they will soon be ruined. . . . G. M., Syracuse, N. Y.—The incident of the tomato-throwing at Wendell Willkie took place at Los Angeles. He also was the target of missiles in Detroit. . . . H. C., Milwaukee—The state department has never been worried over the air operations of the New Zealander. Yerex, near the Panama Canal. His airline has co-operated closely with the U. S. army and navy. However, there were grave fears regarding the SCADTA line in Colombia and SEDTA in Ecuador, both being originally German.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

SAN JUAN, P. R.—Thanks to Tom Ferris, former N. Y. newspaperman with whom I covered the Hauptmann trial, I have seen just about everything in this town that the time will allow. Knowing what to do and what not to do is his business. He represents this Island. In a way he is a sort of good will ambassador. Don't say I sent you, but when you get to San Juan, drop around to his office in the El Mundo bldg. and ask him where the best shops are. Ask him where you can find Enrique Ortega, director of the Institute of Tourism, or how you can get into one of Governor Leahy's press conferences. He'll know. He knows all these things. With Tom today I sat in a little restaurant on a little crooked street and sipped essence of coffee. In Puerto Rico they give you just the essence of coffee. It is heavy, almost syrupy, as Turkish coffee is heavy with aroma and body. With it they serve hot milk. This is not the cafe au lait of New Orleans. It is the "essence" with milk of San Juan. Many people do not care for it. This is a pity. It has a richness of flavor as pungent as walnuts cracked before a winter's fire.

LATER we went out to an old abandoned nightclub named La Conga which is now a factory where mahogany cigarette boxes salad bowls, and book ends are made by hand. Some were in the natural mahogany, which closely resembles maple; others were stained. We saw a matched set of salad bowls destined for Marschall Fields in Chicago. The proprietor of this shop has many customers in the States. He gets his mahogany from Santa Domingo. His finished products are beautifully designed. The prices here are never more than half what they are in the states.

Speaking of La Conga reminds me that San Juan also has a Havana-Madrid Broadway has had La Conga and Havana-Madrid nightclubs for years. This is where their names came from. The music in these places begins early, and lasts long. In the Havana-Madrid the off-beat strains of the rhumba and the tango fade only with the dawn. The dancing never dies. The tables are crowded and the floor is jammed. You can get any sort of refreshment you want, but ninety-nine orders out of a hundred are rum. Another custom is that of strolling between dances. No one sits down. When the music pauses you turn and stroll around the floor, always turning to the left. This is a custom that is seldom ignored.

I HAVE seen only one street car in San Juan, but it travels in a circle and always in the same direction. There is only one set of tracks. Yet people find it adequate. It covers the principal districts of the city, which is quite a city at that. San Juan has a population of 140,000. The old city proper is an island. The newer developments sprawl along the mainland, showing modern skyscrapers with modern plumbing. One of these is the Miami apartments, where Ferris and his attractive wife (a former airline stewardess) occupy a penthouse. The harbor from this vantage point is a thing of beauty, and binoculars bring it right into your lap.

A Farmer's Diary

Boy Meets Skunk

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

MY WIFE was out taking clothes off the line when a passing car came to a halt and a man in hunting clothes asked, "Did you know your two little boys were down along the road with a skunk?"

"Why no," she said. "I didn't know it—where—what are they doing?"

"I saw a skunk going along," he said, pointing. "They were talking to each other about it."

Shading her eyes, their mother looked. Sure enough, a furry black object moved unperturbedly along the gravel, while on the other side of the roadway, her two young hopefuls stood, staring, round-eyed, at the strange black "kitty."

"Don't scare it, boys—don't go any nearer to it! Stay where you are until it goes on by and then come here as fast as you can run! I want to tell you something."

Laughing, the motorist drove on, remarking, "I guess it was after one of your young chickens—I saw the chickens running."

"What was it, mother? Why can't we follow it and see where it goes?" inquired the smallest boy, running up.

Their mother explained, in quick emphatic terms, the danger inherent in following a skunk. Soberly, the two boys sat down on the grass. The five-year-old was fitting a piece of elastic around a forked stick to make a bean shooter.

* * *

AT NOON he remarked: "Mom, you know that skunk—do you know what happened?"

"Why no—what did?"

The child drew a long breath. "Well, Bill was up on the bank. I was down by the alder bushes getting a fork for my slingshot. I had the elastic in my hand. That big old black skunk came along and I took a stone, and drew back and threw it—zing! It hit him hard, and he stopped and looked at me. Then he tried two times to spray me with his stink. But I dodged too fast . . ."

Something in his mother's face made the youngster stop. Gravely she pointed a finger at him. He slowly reddened.

"That was a zinger of a skunk story," his mother said, "only it wasn't a word of it true. Now was it?"

"No-o, it was make believe," admitted the little boy. "But I don't see how you know."

Timely Editorial

Our Press Is Free.

The newspaper's essential role is that of a purveyor of information. A newspaper's opinions are not so important; they may be right or wrong, wise or foolish, like anyone's. But the news the papers purvey is all-important. Modern democracy cannot deal with the complex problems that beset it, except as the people are given facts on which to base their collective judgment.

Democracy could not survive without this service. The first act of any dictatorship is to suppress and harness the newspapers.

The reporters' function, the furnishing of facts, is the one in which newspapers take the greatest pride. Their code of ethics as to accuracy and objectivity in presenting the news is high and most of them live up to it. Yet the people do not have to rely on any code for the purity of their news. Competition is fierce in the newspaper trade, and those who attempt to deceive the people seldom last long at it. A discerning public usually takes care of that.

The United States, now that war has overrun much of the democratic world, is one of pitifully few countries where news and opinion are free. It is more than ever a privilege to be an American newspaperman.—Detroit News.

Daily Bible Thought

Happy is the man that findeth wisdom, and the man that getteth understanding. For the merchandise of it is better than the merchandise of silver, and the gain thereof than fine gold.—Proverbs 3:13-14.

Japanese Threat Creates Sensation In Washington

PITTMAN-FISH TAKE OPPOSITE POLICY STAND

Senator Declares U. S. Will Not Try Appeasement of Munich Variety.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — The war threats against the United States uttered by Japanese Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka created a sensation in Washington today, President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Hull reading the dispatch with keen interest while members of congress expressed sharp resentment.

Matsuoka's assertions, made in an exclusive interview with International News Service in Tokyo, were branded as "most astounding and bellicose," by Chairman Key Pittman of the senate foreign relations committee, who is the administration's spokesman in congress on foreign policy.

Both Mr. Roosevelt and Hull declined comment, but copies of the interview were put in their hands a few minutes after the story was received in this country.

The ranking Republican on the house foreign affairs committee, Rep. Hamilton Fish of New York, declared that Matsuoka's threat of action against the United States if this country enters the European war or insists on maintenance of the status quo in the Orient, makes "it very plain that if we continue our provocative acts we will be in a war with Japan."

Pittman issued the following statement:

"The interview with Japanese Foreign Minister Matsuoka carried today by the International News Service is the most astounding and bellicose statement made in recent times by a foreign minister of a great country. His statements are very unfortunate if accurately reported.

"Matsuoka challenged the United States to stick to its position of the maintenance of the status quo in the Pacific. He said in no equivocal terms: 'If she (the United States) in her contentment is going to blindly and stubbornly stick to the status quo in the Pacific, then we will fight America.'

"It is plain from his statements what he means by Japan's 'new order' in the East when he says:

"'Japan can no longer be strangled in her desires to establish a new order of mutual prosperity in her sphere in east Asia, and has taken a place with the major powers of the world which desire to establish and maintain a new order of mankind.'

"When I charged in a speech on the floor of the United States senate in 1936 that such was the ambition and purpose of the Japanese military government, I was charged with being a war-monger. If the United States is to "blindly and stubbornly stick to the status quo in the Pacific, then we (Japan) will fight America.' In other words, unless the United States agrees not to protest the conquest not only of China but all of east Asia south of China, then Japan will fight America.'

"It is evident from Foreign Minister Matsuoka's statement that he intends that Japan shall engage in no peaceful methods in the establishment of the 'new order' in east Asia, when he says:

"It is nice for the United States to say we must settle everything peacefully, but if we wait for America, we must perish in the years of waiting. So I say to America: Now is the time for action, and Japan will not hesitate when its hour arrives.'

"He charges that Japan has been very patient under all the pressure by the United States. It appears to me, and I have so asserted on many occasions, that in view of the mistreatment of and discrimination against our citizens in China under the nine-power treaty which is still in force, the United States has possibly been too patient. He even threatens the United States for authorizing an embargo on certain war materials essential to our own defense.

"Foreign Minister Matsuoka misunderstands the pacifism of this country. It will do anything honorable to keep out of war, but it will not be guilty of the appeasement of Munich."

Fish, terming the International News Service interview a "highly important document," said:

"I have read the statement of the Japanese foreign minister with a great deal of interest and I think it is well to have his statements of the Japanese position placed before the American people.

"It is very plain that if we continue our provocative acts we will be in a war with Japan. Not one per cent of the American people want war in the Far East and I do not believe that one per cent of members of the Republican party in congress would vote for it and only a small percentage of the Democratic members.

Sen. Thomas (D., Utah), a member of the senate foreign relations committee who lived in Japan many years and is considered an expert on her affairs, said:

"The world has had over two generations of uncertainty in the Far East. No one wants that condition to continue. We want understanding and certainty.

"Japan and her government are not to get an understanding [illegible] wanted with Amer-

OIL DEFENSE

Rumanian Battle Planes Fly Over Petroleum Fields.

BUCHAREST—(AP)—Eighteen Rumanian battle planes flew in a "defensive reconnaissance flight" over Rumanian oil fields Bucharest authorities said today as they pressed an investigation of alleged British sabotage plots against gasoline shipments for Germany.

Some of the planes were German-made Messerschmitts.

Secret police questioned for hours A. Miller, director of the British-dominated Astra-Romana Oil company, who was suddenly turned over to them by persons reported to have kidnaped him two days ago.

British legation officials, after interviewing the oil man in his cell, said he had been beaten during the 18 hours he had been held by a band of youths in plain clothes.

CONGRESSMAN PRAISES PRESS IN 'NATIONAL NEWSPAPER WEEK'

J. Harry McGregor, congressman from the 17th district, today expressed his appreciation of a free American press and a fervent wish that it may remain free, in a "National Newspaper Week" greeting to The News-Journal.

"May God bless the freedom of the American press," he said in a telegram, "and may its fine, unselfish spirit continue to give the American people the splendid example of true journalism that you stand for."

"It is gratifying to see the official press of our great democracy in this week which has been set aside to celebrate the growth and prosperity of American newspapers. National Newspaper Week has become a great asset to the newspapers as well as to the readers, for it shows the 'American Way' of doing things in the newspaper profession in our country. And although some papers may differ editorially and politically on certain questions, yet they all share the international problems of the present day and are the informationists of the American people," McGregor said in his message.

Newspaper Week opened Tuesday and closes next Monday. But The News-Journal's contribution to the observance comes on next Tuesday when it will bring to Mansfield service clubs Kenneth T. Downs, foreign correspondent and ace newspaper reporter who has covered most of the important news stories over the world in recent years.

Downs will address members of Rotary, Kiwanis, Gyro and Optimist clubs at a luncheon meeting Tuesday noon.

LEADERS MEET

Girl Scout Council To Hold Program Conference.

The Leaders association of the Mansfield Council of Girl Scouts will meet at 3:15 p. m. Monday at the Chamber of Commerce room for a conference with members of the program committee of the council.

This year the program committee plans to give aid to the various troop leaders in the way of suggestions for recreational stunts and projects. The program committee is made up of Mrs. G. V. Smith, chairman; Mrs. Louis J. Ott and Mrs. P. C. Davis.

Plans will be discussed for observance of National Girl Scout Week, Oct. 27-Nov. 2, and for the general troop program. There will be an election of a vice president of the Leaders association to fill the vacancy left by Mrs. R. M. Gage who recently resigned.

Ban on Garbage Feeding Studied By Health Board

ASHLAND — There will be no feeding of garbage to hogs in this county if the county health board has anything to do with it, according to a decision made by the board here this week.

In a recent communication to the city, the county health board condemned the feeding of city garbage to hogs kept in this county, and said it must be stopped.

The board refused to grant a permission which would allow that garbage be fed to the hogs at some other location.

In refusing permission, the board declared that if the permission to feed the hogs elsewhere were given to one firm, it would throw responsibility to the board, and would open the way for demands for similar treatment from other firms.

The solution for the problem should rest with the city, which is responsible, according to members of the board.

$4 ROBBERY

ASHLAND—Gaining entry into the Andrew Sponsler home on Pleasant street here, thieves took $4 in cash, it was reported here to city police.

Police also reported that robberies were attempted at the Harry Long barbershop and at the Clayton Gaynard second hand store.

HOLDING OUT

John L. Lewis Reported on Political Fence.

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— President John L. Lewis of the Congress of Industrial Organizations was reported today to be holding out for better terms before pledging his support to the Roosevelt-Wallace ticket.

There were reports also of an early conference between Lewis and Republican presidential candidate Wendell L. Willkie.

Whichever way he goes—if he goes—Lewis will have to eat some language. He told the United Mine Workers at Columbus, O., last winter that Mr. Roosevelt would meet "ignominous defeat" if he sought a third term. Soon afterward Lewis paid his respects to the Republican party: "It does not pretend to serve anyone but the financial interests who control it. In a major sense, it is frankly hostile to labor."

RUNAWAYS HELD

BUCYRUS—When Bucyrus police heard a description of two runaway youths on the police radio Wednesday night they recognized the two 15-year-old youths taken into city jail for lodging several hours earlier.

The pair appeared at police headquarters and asked for lodging about 7 o'clock. They are being held until money arrives from their parents to purchase tickets to their home in Pittsburgh.

GERMANS HIT SCHOOLHOUSE, PLAYGROUNDS

Six Children Killed In One Classroom During Sudden Aerial Attack.

(By United Press)

LONDON — German aviators within the last 24 hours have bombed a village school, killing six children; machine gunned a second one, machine gunned a recreation ground in the Midlands and machine gunned a busload of factory girls in the Liverpool suburbs, it was charged today.

About 400 children, including some evacuated from London, were in their classrooms in a Midlands village when a German plane, the first seen there since the war started, began dropping bombs.

One bomb crashed into a class room filled with boys and girls of about seven years of age. Three girls, a crippled boy and two other boys were killed.

The attack came so suddenly that there was no chance to remove the children to their sandbagged shelters in the playground. But the shelters were damaged by bombs also.

Many children were saved because just before the bombs began hitting their teachers had told them to lie on the floor.

In one classroom which was wrecked, a small boy heard the bombs dropping and cried "Hark, teacher!" They were the first he had heard and he did not know what they were. The teacher, looking from the window, saw a German plane and told her children:

"It's only thunder, but if I were you I'd put my head under the desk."

A few minutes after the plane had passed the teachers led the children from their class rooms, singing "Roll Out the Barrel."

At about the same time a Heinkel plane machine-gunned 80 children in the playground of a Thames-side village school.

It was asserted that the plane circled above the school house for two hours, machine gunning intermittently.

DINNER SPEAKER

ASHLAND — John F. Shannon, president of the Wright Brothers Insurance company of Bellevue will be the main speaker at the tenth annual public affairs dinner to be held by the Ashland Business and Profesional Women's club Monday evening at the First Church of the Brethren.

Mrs. Frank B. Downs of this city will act as chairman of the dinner, which will be served at 6:30 p. m.

Battery D to Spend 6 Days At Armory, Then Go to Camp

Mansfield's Battery D, 134th F. A. of the Ohio National Guard, probably will go directly from Mansfield to training quarters in Fort Shelby, Mississippi, according to information received from regimental headquarters in Columbus.

Capt. R. J. Nichols, commander, said today that original plans to send the battery to Columbus for several days, has been abandoned and instead the men will remain at the Mansfield Armory for six days prior to their leaving for Mississippi. Nichols said he had not yet received official orders to this effect from the war department, but had learned of the plan from headquarters.

The battery will be called out on Oct. 15 and will remain in camp at the armory until the morning of Oct. 21, when it will leave by motor for training camp.

Capt. Nichols said today that he has taken in 10 recruits in the past two weeks, bringing his enlisted men to 71, after the number had dropped to 61. Men with dependents were permitted to withdraw from the national guard after the mobilization call came.

Up until Oct. 15 men may enlist in the battery under army regulations of three-year terms, but on Oct. 16 and until the battery leaves here, Nichols can enlist men for one-year terms, so that they will serve no longer than is required by the draft.

'AMERICAN SIR,' NEW NOVEL ON LIBRARY SHELF

Historical Book By Root Has War of 1812 as Its Background.

A romantic historical novel, "An American, Sir," by Corwin Root has been added to the shelves at the Mansfield Public library this week. With the war of 1812 as a background, the author relates the story of the pilgrimage of the hero from Boston to New Orleans in pursuit of his love.

"Polish Profile," by Virgilia Peterson Sapieha is a personal history of her life as the wife of a Polish prince, and the adjustments she had to make while living in the semi-feudal society of his country prior to the Nazi invasion there.

New fiction includes:

NORTHERN WINTER, by Gosta af Geijerstam, has been translated from the Norwegian by Joran Birkeland. It is a delightfully appealing story of three young men, Gosta, Roald and Ormgutten, who went gaily off together in the years before the other war, to hunt, fish, explore, and play, at Lom Seter, their mountain home. An earlier book by the same author is Northern Summer.

WHO DWELL WITH WONDER, by Kathleen Coyle is a sensitive, delicately perceptive novel concerned with the emotional tensions of three widely different women, brought together by an invalid mother.

Others on this list: LET HIM DIE, by Clements; MAN WITH THE CRIMSON BOX, Keeler; NO SILVER BELLS, Hambledon.

Non-fiction books:

One of the most dramatic and significant aspects of recent governmental action has been the series of prosecutions of monopolies engaged in by the department of justice under the leadership of Assistant Attorney General Arnold. THE BOTTLENECKS OF BUSINESS, by Thurman W. Arnold, author of the Folklore of Capitalism, is Arnold's own exposition of the economic philosophy which underlies those prosecutions, pointed up by a most enlivening and enlightening analysis of some of the principal cases involved. It is also a shrewd and informed commentary on our whole economic system, its weakness and its strength.

HURRICANE'S WAKE, by Ray Kauffmann is a thrilling account of the author's journey around the world in a 45-foot ketch. Everything from exploring the east coast of Mexico to the horror of being lost at sea is to be found in this realistic and romantic tale.

BROTHER, HERE'S A MAN, by Kim Beattie, a Canadian journalist, is the biography of Joe Boyle who was a rough diamond and for whom turbulent rivals in Dawson, grand dukes, commissars, and firing squads, held no terrors. He had adventures enough to stock several movie serials and Mr. Beattie brings out all the drama and romance of his career.

Other non-fiction:

GOOD MAINE FOOD, by Mosser: SOUPS, SAUCES and GRAVIES, by Brown and others: A QUAKER CHILDHOOD, Flexner; REVOLUTION IN LAND, Abrams: SCHOOLMASTER OF ESTERDAY, Kennedy and Harlow; FAT YEARS AND THE LEAN, Minton and Stuart; MARVELS OF INSECT LIFE, Step (editor); MODERN HOUSE IN AMERICA, Ford and Ford; HOUSES FOR GOOD LIVING, Wills; ARTS AND DECORATION BOOK OF SUCCESSFUL HOUSES; SMOKE SCREEN, Pettengill; GERMAN WHITE PAPER, which is the full text of the Polish documents and the report on American Ambassador Bullitt's war attitude.

DRIVERS EACH FINED.

DES MOINES, Ia. —(U.P.)— It cost two motorsts $30 one day recently to find out that when two autos collide at an intersection both drivers may be in the wrong. Each was fined $15.

These Are Nazi Invasion Barges

This photo, made from a Royal Air Force plane and passed by the British censor, shows barges (arrows) at Dunkirk. The vessels, supposed to have been prepared for the invasion of England, are all that were left after a concentrated British air raid which also destroyed, the British claim, many Dunkirk warehouses and supply trains.

OPEN BOOKS FOR PERSONAL TAX

County Prepares To Start Second Half Collections About Oct. 21.

Collection of the second half installment of personal taxes will begin about Oct. 21, County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe said today.

Books will be open for 30 days and during that time county officials hope to collect more than $100,000 as the balance due for the year.

Tax blanks must be filled out by property owners unless their taxes for the entire year were paid during the first half period.

Special deputy auditors will be employed to help property owners file their returns.

Personal taxes, paid on home furnishings, office and factory equipment, investments, and livestock and farm machinery, totaled $133,005 during the first half payment period.

Deputy treasurers estimated that less than half of the tax was paid during that period, however, since taxes from overlapping school districts were not paid then. Settlements from other counties to Richland county will not be made until this payment period, deputies said.

BEAVER POPULAR.

MONTREAL—(U.P.)—A new kind of dressing by which a finer coat can be made is making the beaver pelt the most popular domestic offering at fur auctions here. Also sharing in popularity are Alaskan sealskins.

Informally Speaking...

By MARIANNE

JUST about the most exciting news of the day is of two diamond engagement rings—which account for the smiles on the faces of Jane Weuthrick and Alvena Spriggins. . . . The sparkler Jane is wearing was presented to her by Robert Brook on her birthday anniversary. . . . Alvena received hers from Fred Rader—a Mansfielder who's a law student at Northwestern university in Chicago, Ill. . . . Both the rings are beautiful, so you'd better manage to see them as soon as possible.

HOROSCOPE

ACCORDING to the lunar aspects this should be a very lively day with things of major consequence stirring in connection with groups, public or fraternal or humanitarian projects. Some rather drastic or seemingly ruthless action may be required to launch such promotions on a safe and enduring basis, as they may have profound and far reaching consequences involving the public welfare. In these efforts confer with superiors or those in authority, for they will be in approachable mood.

Those whose birthday it is are to have a year of major importance, with much very decisive activity in the cause of public welfare, either of a political, diplomatic, spiritual or humanitarian purpose. Such aims and ends will be best promoted by the endorsement and practical support of those in power and authority. Seek this with confidence and sound plans.

A child born on this day may have much capacity for public work, with sympathy, understanding and insight into reforms, social and humane needs, general public well-being.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"PERHAPS the interview with Father won't be as devastating to Phil as you fear," I told Lillian, but without conviction, for the remembrance of the great impresario's haggard face and crushed mien as he went into my father's room had made me certain that he faced something so dreadful as to spell the ruin of all his hopes.

"There's your answer, I fancy," Lillian commented dryly as the house telephone tinkled, and when I had answered its summons, my father's voice, low, but insistent, came to my ears.

"Margaret?" he queried, and when I had answered in the affirmative, he gave me a crisp direction couched in language which made me understand Philip Veritzen could hear him.

"Mr. Veritzen is leaving my room now," he said. "Will you please meet him in the hall and show him where he is to sleep? Will you also see Queen Olga, and ask her if she can give him an interview with her shortly. Incidentally, will you please tell the queen that I am lifting the ban I laid upon her a little while ago. Do you understand me? If so, please give me your interpretation of what I have said, but be careful your voice does not carry."

His caution was superfluous, I told myself grimly. My voice was so tremulous with excitement that I knew he must have difficulty in hearing it.

"Do you mean that she may tell Phil about the recovery of the emeralds?"

"Exactly that," he said, "and in a few minutes I want them both to come back to this room, you, perhaps, can conjecture why."

"So that she may show them to him?" I quavered.

"Yes, thank you. Good-bye."

The clicks of the receivers were simultaneous, and I whirled to face Lillian with eyes that I knew must be wide with astonishment.

"Did you hear?" I demanded.

"Enough to 'dee-dooce' a la Katie, that Phil must have beaten his rap whatever it was," she replied dryly. "But may I remind you that the great man is even now moseying down the hall, in search of sanctuary, and—"

"And I already am meeting him," I answered, going into the hall, and finding my former employer almost opposite the door.

"Ah! my dear!" he said as he saw me, and his voice had its old resonant timbre, so sadly lacking in it before he had faced my father. "Your father tells me you will show me where to put my belongings, and, more important still, will ask—Olga when she can see me."

I ignored the remarkable change which had been effected in his face and manner during his interview with my father, and answered him with the casual courtesy which the occasion demanded.

"It's only a few steps to your room," I told him. "Just come with me."

But when I had reached my door, he drew back.

"This is your room!" he exclaimed. "I cannot possibly take this from you."

"It hasn't been my room for days," I said a bit testily. "Miss Fairfax and her nurse have been occupying it, and I have been bunking with Lilian. But, as I told you, we transferred them to my study a little while ago, and the room, empty and cleared of belongings, is at your service. If you will just make yourself at home in it, I will tell Otto to bring up your belongings and make you comfortable, and then—shall I tell Olga you would like to see her?"

"The Authority on Authorities"

A SLIGHT INDICATION.

Paying attention to the least little factor and produce heavy dividends. Plenty of hands swing upon some elements so infinitesimal that it seems like pure luck when the good player gets away with it. If the chances are only 51 to 49 in favor of one course against another that little extra weight in the balance is sufficient to swing it for the keen observer.

North	East	South	West

You will wait a long time to find a No Trump grand slam bid so briefly and probably still longer for a closer guess at the finish of the play East led the heart 7 to the 9 and K then North embarked on a careful campaign to feel out the situation, since there were no 13 sure tricks in sight. When the club 10 fell from West on the A. 12 were sure, but a 13th had to be found. When East discarded a diamond then on the heart Q, North knew that defender had originally seven cards between spades and diamonds and would not have discarded a diamond if he held exactly four. Hence he probably had five and two spades.

Four clubs were then run, the dummy shedding a heart, the spade Q and a diamond. When both defenders followed suit on the diamond A. North felt his reading confirmed with East still having three diamonds and two spades. If the spades included the K. East could be squeezed now by the heart A Having to hold his diamonds East tossed the spade 4 Dummy two high diamonds were now taken and the spade 5 led If West held the K the finesse would be best if East the A could drop it.

North went into a deep huddle. He decided East probably would not have led a singleton in the heart suit except to avoid leading the other major as would be the case if he had the guarded K. So North played the A on the 12th trick dropped the K and took the last trick with the spake J.

DROP IN FINES REDUCES MUNY COURT RECEIPTS

September Collections Total $2,799; $500 Below Figure Reported for August.

Muncipal court receipts totaling $2,799 in September, dropped nearly $500 below the August revenue, the monthly report of collections, prepared by Miss Isabel Gerstmeyer, deputy clerk, disclosed today

Part of the loss was attributed to a $200 drop in fines and costs in city cases, combined with a similar loss in traffic forfeitures which skidded from $708 in August to $495 last month.

From the total receipts, the city's general fund will be increased by $2,201 while $597 will be distributed to the state, county and law library funds..

The city's share was derived from $1,762 collected as fines costs and forfeitures in criminal cases and $439 collected as costs in civil actions.

Fines and costs collected in city criminal cases totaled $507 traffic forfeitures, $495; city's share of state highway patrol cases, $330, forfeitures in criminal cases $56; costs payable to the city in state cases, $373.

A total of $12 will go to the state treasurer from fines collected in state cases; $38 will be distributed to the state from fines collected in liquor cases; the state highway patrol will receive $330 while $200 will go toward maintenance of the law library and $15 to the sheriff of Richland county for service fees.

Convict's Pal Takes Blame In Grocer's Fatal Beating

RETURNS WITH PEN FUGITIVE TO TELL STORY

Canton Prosecutor Indicates Pardon Request In Event Tale Substantiated.

(By Associated Press)

CANTON—Prosecutor A. C. L. Barthelmeh sought to unravel today the case of an escaped life prisoner and his pal who surrendered with him to take the blame and clear the fugitive.

Julius Krause, 28, prisoner for 10 years, and Curtiss Kumerle, 28, his friend, are held in county jail here.

Barthelmeh reported Kumerle confessed he participated in a holdup in which C. A. Bartlett, an aged grocer, was fatally beaten. He said Krause was not present at the time. Oct. 28, 1930.

Krause and Laban Rohrback, a mutual friend, were sentenced for the killing. Rohrback died in Ohio penitentiary in 1936. Krause said Rohrback left two statements also clearing him.

Krause walked away from a group of honor prisoners Aug. 19 at the Ohio State Fair grounds in Columbus. He came to Canton and found Kumerle two weeks ago working as a gasoline station attendant.

They conferred with their former benefactor, Ed C. Myers, a Y. M. C. A. boys' secretary. They called Prosecutor Barthelmeh to Myers' cottage at Turkeyfoot lake 18 miles north of Canton yesterday and made their statements while a court stenographer recorded them.

Kumerle said "I wanted to get it off my chest," Barthelmeh related.

The prosecutor reported Kumerle's statement said Krause left the automobile in which they were riding before Kumerle and Rohrback robbed the grocer.

Later, they met Krause again and divided the $60 loot among all three. Kumerle then left and Krause and Rohrback were arrested when they drove into a garage where police were waiting for the stolen car they were driving.

Bartlett died the next day. Krause said he did not profess his innocence because he thought it no use after the stolen money was found on him.

Kumerle was released Aug. 1 from the state reformatory at Mansfield where he served a sentence of 16 months for breaking and entering a gasoline station. That had no connection with the grocer's slaying.

Barthelmeh said he would ask a pardon for Krause if Kumerle's statement is substantiated.

Krause said Rohrback's statements were among his effects at the penitentiary and he offered to go back there. Prison authorities ordered that he be held here temporarily, however.

4,000 ENLIST IN ARMY AREA

Adjutant General Reports 192 Join Up Daily.

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)— Army enlistments in the fifth corps area—Ohio, West Virginia, Kentucky and Indiana—reached an all-time record of 4,809 during September, Col. S. G. Talbott, adjutant general for the area, said today.

The enlistments, which will be deducted from the conscription quotas of the four states, averaged 192 for each working day during the last month, Col. Talbott reported.

The recruiting quota for the fifth corps area is 10,594 and the enlistments during September boosted the total for the area to within 84.4 per cent of fulfillment.

Naturally the troop is the envy of all the other Girl Scouts in the city. They will have their first meeting at their new home at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday. At least one man in Mansfield is thanking himself today for having a poor memory. Twenty years ago, Peter Hoffman, who once ran a grocery store at 75 Harker street where he now makes his home, hid a sack containing 20 silver dollars. He intended to use the $20 in case of emergency, but during the course of the years Hoffman forgot all about it. Recently, when his son, Harvey Hoffman, was making some repairs around the house, he came across the money. Hoffman recalled then the hidden cache of 20 years ago.

President Takes Notice of Axis Antagonism.

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— President Roosevelt today took official notice of assertions that Germany and Italy are working to defeat him in the November election.

Mr. Roosevelt read to a press conference a New York Times dispatch from Rome which asserted that the Axis "is out to beat President Roosevelt."

"So far as the United States is concerned," the dispatch said, "the Axis is primarily interested in keeping her out of the war, and trying to prevent or minimize her help to Britain. The three power alliance was intended to be one step in this direction. It well may be that another step will be taken.

"Moreover, the Axis is out to beat President Roosevelt, not as a measure of interference in American internal politics but because of the president's foreign policy and because of everything for which he stands in the eyes of Italians and Germans.

CONGRESS IN DRIVE TO CLEAR DESKS FOR RECESS NEXT WEEK

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—The last big defense appropriations bill delivered to the president's desk, congressional leaders redoubled efforts today to clear the remaining important legislation from their slates so that a recess might be taken sometime next week, possibly Tuesday.

Majority Leader Barkley (D-Ky.) said the senate would "be ready to quit this week" but hastened to add that the wind-up of the current 10-month session could not come before next week.

Both the senate and house turned in speedy performances yesterday on the $1,482,000,000 defense appropriation bill—last of the big preparedness "money measures" expected this session. The senate whipped it through without either debate or a record vote, then the house concurred in the senate version and hurried the legislation to the White House. The bulk of the funds carried by the bill will go for the expenses of the conscription program and the expanding army.

The senate also approved another item connected with defense—the $200,000,000 war department civil functions bill. First, however, it knocked out a house-approved provision for $80,000,000 to start construction on 4,000 new airports. The bill, which includes funds for training 700,000 defense workers, now goes to conference.

Senator Barkley called for prompt action today on still another supplementary defense measure, an authorization of $24,000,000 of river and harbor projects. When that has been disposed of, the senate was expected to approve a one-year extension of the sugar quota act already passed by the house.

House leaders called for a brief session to consider a number of minor bills.

Among pending measures was the Ramspeck bill granting the president authority to place nearly 200,000 government workers under civil service. The senate agreed to the conference report on this late yesterday.

DRUG COMPANY SEEKS TO HALT 16-CENT RATE

Cleveland Case Tests Power of U. S. Court Over That of State of Ohio.

(By Associated Press)

CLEVELAND — Federal Judge Robert N. Wilkin was told today it was "inconceivable" that he would upset a state court order upholding a minimum price of 16 cents a package on standard brands of cigarets.

The statement was advanced by Samuel L. Abrams, secretary of the Ohio fair trade committee's tobacco division.

The Lane Drug company, however, argued that "bias against chain stores" led Common Pleas Judge John M. McCable to rule at Toledo Wednesday that the drug company could not sell "smokes" for 15 cents. Jobbers, acting through the committee, "entered into a conspiracy to fix prices of all cigarets in the state of Ohio," Lane Drug added.

Abrams declared "issuance of an injunction by this federal court will be entirely futile inasmuch as this plaintiff has already been permanently enjoined by the state court.

"It is inconceivable that a federal court would enjoin a state court from enforcing an injunction already issued by a state court."

A cigaret vendor brought the Toledo suit—but before Judge McCabe's decision Lane Drug turned to federal court here asking, among other things, an injunction "restraining any action in state courts" by the committee. Judge Wilkin followed by ordering the committee to show cause why an order should not be issued against the price-fixing agreement and against action in Ohio's courts.

The drug company said it buys all its cigarets from manufacturers at 13½ cents a package, and that its cigaret sales have dropped 15 per cent since it was forced to raise its price from 15 to 16 cents. Enforcement of the minimum price, it argued, would "add a charge against the Toledo public alone of approximately $200,000 a year."

The Voice of BROADWAY

—By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

TALES FROM TIMES SQUARE.

Bert Wheeler stopped between rhumbas at the Stork club the other evening long enough to relate the tale of the lad out on his first date with a very beautiful babe. He took her to a night club and began to make light conversation with her.

"What do you think of the foreign situation?" he inquired.

"I think there are entirely too many of them," replied the doll.

The fellow did a double take.

"What do you think of Hitler?" he tried again.

"Who's he?" asked the girl.

This went on for a couple of hours, and finally our weary hero took the belle home.

On her doorstep, as she was saying what a lovely evening she'd had, the lad shook his head.

"You're a beautiful girl," he told her, "but you are undoubtedly the most stupid person I've ever met."

"Oh, if you think I'm stupid," she grinned, drooping over so that her hands swung just above the ground, "you should see my father. He walks like this!"

Hildegarde is repeating the story of the incident said to have taken place in a London subway station during an air raid. The lights went out and presently a woman screamed.

"Take your hands off me!" a female voice cried. Then after a pause: "No, not you! YOU!"

Rich refugees have been thronging the smart spots ever since the season began; if somebody steps on your toe the voice that says "excuse me" has an accent. At the Cafe Bruno the other night there was an unusually large representation of dialects, titles, and foreign facades. Two alien gentlemen seated at the Clock Bar were looking the house over, and one seemed to be telling the other Who Was Who.

"Tell me," requested the not-so-well-informed one, "Who is that gorgeous creature over there?"

His companion shot the woman in question a hurried glance.

"I don't know her," he shrugged. "She must be an American!"

Tom Cassidy, the late newspaperman, was a reporter who stopped at nothing to get his story, but once, when he was in Alabama covering the Scottsboro trial, he momentarily lost his nerve. That was on the evening when an angry mob appeared in front of the house where he, Sam Leibowitz, and the other New Yorkers were staying, and began yelling, "Lynch them! Lynch them!"

Tom feverishly phoned Jeff Burke, his editor in New York, describing the perilous situation. "I've just got time to sneak out the back door," he finished. "Goodbye."

"Stay right where you are!" screamed the editor. "You wanna ruin a good story?"

Betty Allen, the DuBarry football fan, was walking down 46th street last night when she sensed that she was being followed by a sidewalk cowboy. As he drew up alongside her and began the conventional snake's overture, Betty cut him off. "What is this," she snapped, "a lateral pass?"

They were talking about doting daddies at the 48th street Tavern the other night, when Al Jolson told his favorite about the time he was to broadcast and his father long-distanced him from Washington. "It was great," said Papa Yeolson, "you were marvelous!"

"But I haven't even started yet," said Al.

For a moment there was silence. Then Papa came back, "Yeah, but you forgot the three hours difference in time."

At Monte Proser's Beachcomber the other night the boys were discussing a local torch carrier who had been moaning about his lost love to the annoyance of everyone within earshot. "He's the sort of guy," cracked Monte, "who wears his heart on a sandwich board."

William Saroyan, the dramatic rug-cutter who admits he has seven plays waiting for production, was at the Ruban Bleu opening night, which reminded someone of a visit he had made last week to Saroyan's office.

"When I got there," he recounted, "the door was locked and there was a sign on it that said 'Back in 20 minutes.'"

"I guess," Jimmy Cannon ventured, "he was out writing another play!"

Frank Case, the Wayward Innkeeper, was telling this story to a circle of friends last night at the Algonquin:

Quite a few years back when John Barrymore was an inmate of the Algonquin, he was Case's chief source of worry. No one was ever quite as irresponsible as The Great Profile and no one ever disregarded his bills and his creditors so completely. And for all this Case was the fall guy, the nursemaid.

One day, however, Frank wearied of Barrymore's indebtedness to the hotel and, half in fun, had a summons slapped on him. The next afternoon Barrymore brushed passed him in the lobby.

"Here," he said to Case, pushing some paper into Frank's hand, "take care of this for me, will you?" And he stalked off.

Case examined the paper. It was the summons.
